Cake-cutting etiquette and guidelines

The presentation of the wedding cake marks the culmination of the day's festivities and a final symbol of a happy couple's new partnership. Many people eagerly await the cake as much as they may anticipate catching a glimpse of the bride in her beautiful gown. While the cake in all its finery can be a beautiful sight to behold, a cake can only last so long before its fate as a delicious dessert is sealed.

As is the case with many wedding traditions, there is some established etiquette with regard to cutting and serving wedding cake. If you plan on putting your cake on display, be sure it is made with a frosting and filling that can endure room temperature. Certain creams may sour if not refrigerated, and you do not want anyone becoming ill. If you have your heart set on perishable fillings, keep the cake refrigerated and then have the big reveal right before it is cut.

The cake cutting usually comes near the end of the wedding reception. Schedule the cutting so that older guests or young children can leave without feeling as if they would be offending anyone. The emcee of the evening typically announces the cake cutting, and the band may play a quirky tune or revisit the wedding song while the first slice is being cut.

A bride should hold the cake knife with her right hand, while the groom places his right hand over hers before they proceed to slice down together. If the cake has a foam or cardboard support, be careful not to cut through it. Use a cake server to grab the first piece.

Traditionally the newly betrothed will feed each other a bite of the cake to symbolize their first meal as a couple. Couples can feed each other a small amount, taking care not to spill any. Many couples no longer embrace the once-popular tradition of smashing cake in each other's faces, but whether or not couples follow this tradition is up to them.

Some couples like to

The cake-cutting ritual at weddings has withstood the test of time, and many couples still prefer to present the cake with fanfare and excitement.

serve their parents a piece of cake. Traditionally the bride should serve the groom's parents and the groom the bride's parents.

If there is a groom's cake, guests may prefer a slice of both cakes. Guests may also want to take home a slice of the groom's cake. Tradition states that a piece of the groom's cake should be presented to an unmarried woman attending the wedding. The woman is not expected to eat the cake, but rather to put it under her pillow. Superstition held that this tradition would help an unmarried woman find a husband. Make arrangements for proper packaging of the groom's cake, so guests can take home a slice if they so desire.

The waitstaff typically handles the slicing of the cake. The uppermost tier is reserved for the couple to save, and the remainder of the cake will be served.

Recognize that not all guests like cake, but it's better to err on the side of caution and have a cake that will feed all of the guests. You also may want to offer a dessert bar for guests who prefer another type of sweet treat. However, this is a luxury, not a necessity.

Pocketknife

Q: I have a Case pocketknife, which a dealer told me is a Tested XX, model 6225LP. It is in green bone and 3 inches. Since I paid $50 for it, I am anxious to know if I got a bargain. -- Josh, Pottsville, AR

A: Let me cut to the chase. I found your knife referenced in "American Premium Guide to Knives & Razors: Identification and Price Guide" by Jim Sargent. According to the sixth edition of his book, your knife is worth about $450. If the handle had been yellow instead of green, it would be about $100 less. The popularity of knives, especially older pocketknives from the 1920s and '30s, has increased in recent years, and alas, so have prices in the marketplace. As with most collectibles, condition is important when determining values.

A dealer who buys knives is Blue Ridge Knives, 166 Adwolfe Road, Marion, VA 24354; www.blueridgeknives.net.

Q: I have an opportunity to purchase a collection of Pez candy dispensers. I'm not certain if I am getting a good deal, and before I complete the deal I wanted to get your advice. -- Jim, Carson City, Nevada

A: Before you buy the collection, invest about $25 in one of the better price guides: "The Collector's Guide to Pez: Identification & Price Guide" by Shawn Peterson and published by Krause Books. This excellent reference features more than 1,200 images for both common and rare variations. Since it is frequently updated, the prices seem to replace the current marketplace.

Q: I recently purchased a dinner set from a neighbor. It is the Virginia Rose pattern made by Homer Laughlin. When was it made? My neighbor knew nothing about it. -- Rhue, Sun City West, Arizona

A: Your question is almost impossible to answer. According to "The Collector's Encyclopedia of Homer Laughlin China: Reference & Value Guide" by Joanne Jasper and published by Collector Books, your pattern was introduced in 1929 and sold for home use well into the 1970s. It was one of the most popular shapes ever created by the Homer Laughlin Company, and was named for the granddaughter of W.E. Wells, a man responsible for setting the course of development of the company during its earliest decades.

Dollars and sense

by David Uffington

Eight ways to save on a low income

Trying to save on a limited income can be tough, but it's not impossible. What's required is the determination to succeed at saving.

Here are some ideas for getting started.

- Make holiday gift giving for the kids only this year. Let the adults in your circle of family and friends know that you'll be limiting the gifts you buy. Chances are they will be relieved.

- Stick to your list at the grocery store. No extras, even if you find a bargain. There will be new bargains next week.

- Use your tax refund next year to buy savings bonds, up to a limit of $5,000 per year. The Series I bonds can be purchased with some or all of your refund. You'll need to file a Form 8888, Allocation of Refund (Including Bond Purchases). This needs to be done in $50 increments.

Years down the road when you cash in your bonds, you'll need to pay taxes on the interest. The term of ownership is a minimum of one year, so be sure your emergency fund is in place before you commit all of your refund. If you redeem the bonds before five years, you forfeit the three most recent months of interest. The benefit of having money tucked away in savings bonds is that you can't access it on a whim.

- Ask for reductions in costs for cable, auto insurance and other payments. Chances are they'd rather work with you than lose you as a customer. Put the extra money into savings.

- Buy second-hand where you can. Careful shopping can get you nearly new clothing and small appliances at Salvation Army or Goodwill stores. Put the extra money into savings.

- Consider taking a temporary part-time job. Retail (especially during the holiday season) is a good place to start.

- Don't let yourself get hungry. Sounds odd, but the truth is that if you're away from home, you're more likely to cave in and venture into a restaurant. The same goes for grocery shopping: Eat before you go to keep from succumbing to the temptations on every aisle.

- If you have extra room in your house, consider using AirBnB as a way to rent out space to visitors for a few days. Price your space lower than local hotels and save the money.

Whatchamacallit

As many of our readers know, a scythe is a hand tool for mowing down grass and reaping crops. The scythe is a simple tool, carried over from Europe and was used extensively until the adoption of horse drawn and motorized machinery.

This week's Whatchamacallit is the companion tool to the scythe, the cylindrical, cigar-looking sharpening stone.

Whetstones may be natural or artificial stones. Today, the use of natural stone for sharpening has diminished with the widespread availability of high-quality, consistent particle size artificial stones.

Artificial stones usually come in the form of a bonded abrasive composed of a ceramic such as silicon carbide (carborundum) or of aluminium oxide (corundum).

Bonded abrasives provide a faster cutting action than natural stones. They are commonly available as a double-sided block with a coarse grit on one side and a fine grit on the other enabling one stone to satisfy the basic requirements of sharpening. The shape of this stone is designed for a specific purpose, sharpening scythes.

Do you have your own Whatchamacallit?

Please send a picture and a short description of the item to bjacquays@leepub.com or call Branden at 518-673-0145. Visit our Facebook page each week to see if you can figure out what the upcoming Whatchamacallit is.

He who does not understand your silence will probably not understand your words.

Factors to consider when choosing a wedding photography package

Couples must make a host of important decisions when planning their weddings. Some decisions, such as choosing a venue to host the reception, require more effort and research on the part of couples than others.

One decision that couples must make carefully concerns the photography package they choose for their ceremonies and receptions. Wedding photographers play a big role on a couple's big day, and it's important that men and women about to tie the knot consider a host of factors before choosing the men or women they will ultimately task with visually documenting their wedding days.

- Engagement photoshoot: Couples who want to do an engagement photoshoot may want to negotiate such a shoot into their photography package. Some agencies include engagement shoots in their packages while others do not. If the engagement photoshoot is on your list of needs, then look for an agency that provides such services as part of its packages or agencies willing to include the engagement photoshoot for free or for an added fee.

- Party size: The number of people on the guest list should factor into your choice of wedding photographer. If your guest list is especially large, then you might want to consider hiring two or more photographers to document the day. Many agencies offer separate packages for couples who want one photographer and couples who prefer two or more photographers, so it pays to examine the price differences between such packages to see if more than one photographer can fit into your budget. Couples with relatively small guests lists can typically get by with just a single photographer to document their ceremonies and receptions.

- Travel: When discussing a wedding photography package, ask how much travel is included in the package. This is important for couples whose ceremonies are in a separate location from their receptions. If the distance between the ceremony site and the reception venue is considerable, you may have to pay extra for the photographer to travel between both sites. While a reasonable amount of travel is typically included in a photography package, it's best that you confirm this prior to signing an agreement.

- Videography: Many photography agencies also offer videography services in some of their wedding packages. Videography can be a great way for couples to document their wedding days, and it can be fun for couples to watch their wedding videos with their families down the road.

Children's Books

Q: I was born in 1947 and grew up reading Golden Books, Elf Books, See Saw Books and my favorites, the Story Hour series. I have started buying the ones I remember when I see them at garage sales or in shops. My problem is I have no idea of values. Can you recommend a good price guide for me? — Darla, Columbia, MO

A: Although there are several excellent guides, my personal favorite is "Warman's Children's Books: Identification & Price Guide" by Steve Santi and published by Krause Books. It has concise histories and hundreds of listings with values for many of the books issued by the major book publishers for children. Major space is devoted to Golden Books, Whitman, Rand McNally, Wonder, Treasure, Holly, Owl, Pied Piper and Star-Bright. Incidentally, the first Golden Book was "Three Little Kittens," issued in 1942 and worth about $50 in good condition.

Q: I have a glass bowl that is marked "Quezal." I have been told it was given to a distant relative as a wedding present in 1915. Since I have never heard of Quezal glass and can't find it in any of my reference books, I hope you can help me. — Barbara, Pine Castle, FL

A: The Quezal Art Glass Decorating Company opened in Brooklyn in 1901 and closed in about 1925. I found the mark in "Miller's Antique Marks" by Judith Miller and published by Miller Books. This handy reference documents more than 6,000 marks that make it easier to identify silver, ceramics, glass and other treasures. Priced at $9.99, it is quite a bargain.

Q: I have a partial set of sterling flatware. I am not certain of the pattern, but since I no longer use the pieces, I would like to liquidate the set. Do you have any suggestions? — Carol, Wausau, WI

A: The Silver Queen silver company has been in business for several decades and buys and sells older sterling flatware.

The company maintains an inventory of more than 6,000 patterns of active and discontinued silver patterns. Contact is 1350 West Bay Drive, Largo, FL 33770. Check out the website at www.silverqueen.com, or call 800-262-3134 for a free catalog and price list.

Why a Valentine's Day wedding might be right for you

Valentine's Day evokes strong emotions in so many people. On the official day of all things love, many eagerly anticipate the chance to spend time with their sweethearts.

halls may be embellished with flowers, balloons and other décor, while businesses may already be displaying hearts in their windows and twinkling pink, red and white lights for Valentine's-focused customers.

Couples who may not know which colors to choose for their wedding parties and table linens can just go with the colors and themes of Valentine's Day if they decide to tie the knot on Feb. 14. Chocolate brown, red, lavender, and pink are primary hues for the season, and any combination will complement the festivities and ceremony - whether they're the color of the napkins or making up the bouquet.

Valentine's Day treats and trinkets make for great wedding favors. Guests can take home individual boxes of chocolates or crystal candle votives, while buffet dessert tables can be embellished with vases filled with chocolate kisses or candied hearts.

Couples looking for a special day to tie the knot need not look any further than Valentine's Day, a day devoted to couples and the affection they share for each other.

Couples who already have hearts in their eyes and are enamored with all things Valentine's Day may want to tie the knot on this special holiday, and few can argue when a couple decides to become husband and wife on this day devoted to love and affection.

Valentine's Day is a popular day to tie the knot, as more than two million people choose Feb. 14 to walk down the aisle in the United States alone.

Valentine's Day is an easy day to remember, meaning it will be hard for husbands and wives to forget their wedding anniversaries.

Another benefit to getting married on Valentine's Day is the ambiance may already be taken care of by various establishments in the community. Reception
