Dog licenses due by Dec. 1 in St. Johnsville

NOTICE from the Town of St. Johnsville that all dogs located in both the Village and Town must be licensed with the Town Clerk by Dec. 1, 2017. A current rabies certification and spay/neuter certificate (if applicable) is required to license a dog. Fees for licensing are $5 for spay/neutered and $15 if not.

The Town Clerk's office hours are Monday, Wednesday, and Friday 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. A mail slot in the front door can also be used, or if mailing in your information, please make checks payable to The Town of St. Johnsville, P.O. Box 28, St. Johnsville, NY 13452.

Soup, Pie, and Craft Sale

The Frothingham Free Library located at 28 West Main Street in Fonda will be holding a Soup, Pie, and Craft Sale at the library on Saturday, Nov. 18 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. A variety of craft items will include – alpaca clothing, jewelry, wreaths, crocheted items, floral barrettes, ribbon bows, and more. The sale also includes homemade soups, pies, cheesecakes, breads, rolls, and a Chinese auction.

Donations of non-perishable food items for the Haven of Hope Food Pantry will be accepted at the door.

For more information about the Frothingham Free Library please check out fonlib.blogspot.com, our Facebook page or call the library at 518-853-3016 during library hours. Library hours are Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday 11 a.m.-7 p.m., Friday 12-7 p.m., and Saturday 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

Food safety for the holidays

Montgomery County Public Health wants to ensure everyone stays healthy for this holiday season. Food is always an important part of holiday festivities, but holiday meals can take a turn for the worse if food safety isn't a regular ingredient in preparing and cooking the food. The food you serve your family can be very harmful if not handled safely or refrigerated promptly.

Foodborne disease infections continue to be a serious health issue in the United States, causing an estimated one in six Americans (or 48 million people) to become sick each year. The most common foodborne diseases associated with meat, poultry and fish are Salmonella, Campylobacter, and E. coli. Most people become sick by eating contaminated foods or beverages or by coming in contact with someone who has a foodborne illness. Pregnant women, older adults, infants and young children, and those with weakened immune systems are at higher risk for severe infections.

Here are a few helpful tips:

- Clean — Remember to wash your hands with soap and warm water for 20 seconds before and after handling food. Hand washing is one of the best ways to prevent the spread of foodborne illness. Wash all kitchen utensils, dishes, and countertops with hot water and soap.

- Separate — Try to use one cutting board for raw meat, poultry, and seafood and a separate one for fresh produce. Keep fish and seafood, raw turkey, roasts, hams, and other meats and their juices separate from other side dishes when preparing meals.

- Cook — Cook meat and poultry to a safe minimum internal temperature: turkey, stuffing, casseroles, and leftovers to 165°F; beef, veal and lamb roasts to 145°F; "fully cooked" ham to 140°F and fresh ham, pork, and egg dishes to 160°F. Use a food thermometer. Egg products can be substituted in recipes typically made with raw eggs, such as eggnog, custard, or key lime pie. Be sure that eggs and products containing eggs are thoroughly cooked when serving those at higher risk for foodborne illness.

- Chill — Chill food promptly. Keep the fridge at 40°F or below to prevent bacteria from growing. Custard pies and other egg dishes should always be kept cool. Put leftovers in the refrigerator within 2 hours. Remember to never defrost food at room temperature. Remember, be "food safe" during the holidays by following the four basic steps of food safety.

For more food safety tips visit the Be Food Safe Web site at www.befoodsafe.gov.

Ask Karen "at www.askkaren.gov", U.S. Department of Health and Human Services at www.foodsafety.gov/, FDA at www.fda.gov/ForConsumers/ConsumerUpdates/ucm092815.htm or call the U.S. Department of Agriculture's toll-free Meat and Poultry Hotline at 888-674-6854 or the Center for Disease Control and Prevention's Consumer Information at 800-CDC-INFO.

Kovels: Antiques and Collecting

by Terry and Kim Kovel
What's a Jeep?

What's a "jeep"? To a car collector or soldier, it is a special kind of vehicle that can travel over all sorts of rough terrain. But to a comic collector, it's a bright-yellow animal that looks a little like a dog walking on its two hind legs. It has a large red nose, tiny ears and is magical.

Eugene the Jeep first appeared in 1936 in the comic strip "Thimble Theater," along with Popeye and Olive Oyl. Eugene the Jeep wanted to help humans and always told the truth, although the only word he said was "jeep."

There were other characteristics, too. Eugene ate orchids only, could predict the future, could teleport himself and walk through walls. Jeep was so popular that he was included as Popeye's pet on and off in animated cartoons, comic strips and animated television shows from the 1930s and 1940s to 1987.

Jeep memorabilia was plentiful, but a lot was not saved. There are old stuffed or wooden dolls, figurines, plaster carnival statues, toys, games and textiles. In 2012, a new Popeye comic included Eugene, and new Jeep collectibles were made.

An old 13-inch-tall composition and wooden doll made by Cameo Doll Co. was recently sold. He has a label on his chest that reads "Jeep, (c) King Features Syn, 1935." A fan spent $1,044 to take Jeep home. An 8-inch version of the doll in the same auction sold for only $297.

G: When I was growing up, my grandmother had a strange lamp in the breakfast room. It looked like an 8-inch high cylinder that had a light bulb inside. The heat of the light made hot air that turned the paper or plastic cylinder. There was a picture of Niagara Falls on the side, and as the shade turned, it made it look like the water was flowing over the falls. I want to get a similar lamp for my son, but I don't know where or what to call it.

A: Your grandmother had a "motion lamp," probably made by the Scene-in-Action Company of Chicago. It made the lamps from 1925 to 1936. They were the first, but several other companies made similar "moving" lamps. They were interesting, but gave very little light. Ten years ago, the lamps sold for about $200 to $250, but today they're worth only about half that much.

This Jeep doll went for over $1,000 in a Hakes.com auction. He is a character in a Popeye comic strip from the 1930s and after. Many World War II soldiers think the vehicle called a Jeep was named for him, because with his magic powers, he could travel the most treacherous terrain.

Now Here's A Tip

by JoAnn Derson

• "I have a great idea for cleaning skylights. Attach an old T-shirt to the broom end of a long-handled broom, then just mist with a cleaner. You can hold it up and scrub gently. The T-shirt material makes a great scrubber." — C.L. in Alabama

• "In my house, cleaning up is a big issue. I have a large basket in the garage that is designated Toy Time Out. I ask the kids to pick something up and give them a time limit. If I have to ask again, the item goes into time out for a day. I typically get a good response to my requests." — Mom in Maryland

• Thanksgiving Tip: "If you have one person responsible for putting prep dishes and pots and pans in the dishwasher while you are preparing the bird and side dishes for the table, you will be halfway done with dishes by the time the meal is over." — M.A. in Washington

• "I buy extra supplies for Thanksgiving dinner as items go on sale. We always make extra-large portions of our side dishes, and put in an extra turkey while we're eating! Freeze meals in individual containers for quick dinners throughout the busy weeks from Turkey Day to Christmas Day. Potatoes and vegetable casseroles freeze well, and they taste better than microwave dinners from the grocery store." — E.S. in Oregon

• For a tailgating favorite, make this: Prepare a batch of macaroni and cheese, then add an egg and stir in. Butter the wells of a muffin tin and fill with the mac and cheese. Top with a bit of shredded cheddar and bake for 20 minutes at 400 F. You can even make them super portable by using muffin liners. The gang loves these — no fork necessary!

The concept of well-to-do people helping the less fortunate is nothing new. In fact, charity has been a part of human cultures for thousands of years.

Charity is a humanitarian act to give to those in need. The word "charity" is derived from the Latin "caritas," which means "preciousness, dearness and high price." Charity is also tied to philanthropy, a word from the Greek "philanthropia," meaning "love of mankind." Charitable philanthropy has evolved to refer to the various forms of kindness directed toward others.

It is believed that charitable giving in some form has been around since 2500 BCE, when ancient Hebrews instituted a tax intended to help the poor. Philanthropy became a pillar upon which many religious organizations were built. Many charities were formed to provide basic necessities to others.

Charitable giving has been documented in nearly all cultures in some shape or form. According to the National Philanthropic Trust, classical Chinese philosophy exalted the virtue of benevolence. Ancient Greeks considered giving fundamental to democracy. Philanthropy was thought to promote balance and harmony among Native Americans.

Moses Maimonides, a

12th century rabbi and philosopher, helped shape modern philanthropy by establishing the Golden Ladder of Charity in the Mishneh Torah. Maimonides' eight levels of charitable giving ascend accordingly in value. They rank from giving grudgingly as the very least form of charity to helping to sustain a person before he or she becomes impoverished as the greatest. Maimonides' teachings helped shape future notions of giving.

Philanthropy has changed throughout history. Plato established a group working for the public good. Roman Emperor Augustus gave public aid to 200,000 people. In 1643, the first American fundraising drive was organized by Harvard University. Today, the value of donations to charity comprise roughly 2 percent of the total national gross domestic product in the United States. The charitable giving resource Winspire says more than 95 percent of households in the United States donate to charity.

Charitable giving continues to grow, with new philanthropic groups being established every year. Giving has become a major component of modern culture and an important part of shaping individuals, families and communities.

Fall HUNTING GUIDE

Home Country

by Slim Randles

Old Jasper Blankenship bought a deer license again this year, just as he's done every year since Eisenhower was President. He sticks nickels and dimes in a jar all year long and smiles each time he contributes. By fall, he's saved up enough for a deer tag.

Jasper lives full-time out at the diggin's with his dog, Arthur, of course, so he has only to walk about 100 feet from the cabin to do his hunting. That's one of the marvels of it.

If he sees a nice buck, he might shoot it. Hey, he enjoys venison like everyone else, of course. But he might not shoot it. He had two good shots last fall and didn't take either one of them. He's tried to justify this inactivity to himself, but has come a cropper each time.

So off he went once again with his rifle to sit against that one certain tree, kinda scrooched around in the pine needles until he was comfortable, and waited.

The squirrel came down a nearby tree and chattered at him for a while, and then left. The blue jay flew to a branch above him and looked down. Didn't stay long, though.

The soft music of the mountains began along about four in the afternoon, resembling at first just the breeze in the tops of the aspens, but later taking form into a melody no composer could ever create.

A legal buck came along just about sundown, but he just waved at it and watched it bound off. Didn't want to shoot one on opening day, anyway. Still five days to go. Maybe tomorrow.

We'll see.

Whatchamacallits

This week's Whatchamacallit harkens back to a time when the tools used to make things were as lovely as the things made. It is a mortise gauge made of rosewood and brass — but not just any mortise gauge. This is a very rare William Barrett mortise gauge made sometime around 1857 in Stephentown, NY.

According to Jim Fox, who wrote an article in the September 2017 issue of The Gristmill, Barrett's unpatented internal brass mortise slide adjustment predated Stanley's patented (1872) gauge mechanism by 15 years.

The pins used for marking are called spurs; one is fixed on the stem and the other is adjustable and can be seen on the full brass plated beam (below right). The fence is also made of brass.

The width of the mortise was adjusted by turning the thumb-screw at the end of the stem, which moved the adjustable stem. The fence also has a thumbscrew for adjusting.

The woodworker would scribe the wood with the spurs so he knew where to chisel out the mortise to receive the tenon. Mortise and tenon were the common means of joinery for centuries.

Do you have your own Whatchamacallit?

Fort Plain Leukemia fundraiser tapes American Ninja Warrior to the wall

by Elizabeth A. Tomlin

"Being duct taped was an interesting experience," laughs Fort Plain Jr./Sr. High Art teacher, Geoff Snyder.

Geoff Snyder, Fort Plain Jr/Sr High Art teacher, was the target for the "Taping the Teacher" Leukemia fund raiser at the Fort Plain Jr/Sr High School.

Photos by Elizabeth A. Tomlin

Snyder was "taped" at a Leukemia fundraiser that took place during the annual Halloween Dance at the Fort Plain Jr./Sr. High School on Friday, Oct. 27.

Snyder — who is also known locally for his American Ninja Warrior skill and competition — said, "I didn't really know what to expect when I arrived at the dance. I always chaperone the Halloween dance because it's the best dance of the year. The kids are always excited to show off their costumes. A lot of them are pretty inventive, too."

Snyder says he was approached by Student Chair Quinn Jones to take part. Jones is on the team that coordinated the fundraiser.

"Quinn had approached me earlier in the week and informed me of what they were thinking of doing. Although being taped to a wall isn't what I'd consider 'fun', it was for charity and I have a really hard time saying no to our students."

Students showed off their Halloween costumes.

Snyder says there are "some unbelievable kids" in the district and he's always proud to help them out, especially when they're thinking of others.

Fort Plain Junior/Senior High School English teacher Lisa Sue Trembley, is a student council adviser along with Linda Cole. Together with Jones and the rest of the planning committee the event came together.

"Last year we were asked to help with Pennies for Patients," reports Trembley. "We did, and we raised $95 by collecting change. This year, we wanted to set a higher goal."

Trembley said Christine Krenzer, of the Leukemia &

Lymphoma Society (LLS) — reportedly the “world’s largest voluntary health agency dedicated to blood cancer” — met with the group and offered suggestions as to how to raise more money.

“Taping a Teacher to the wall was one of those ideas, so the kids decided to ask our American Ninja Warrior teacher, Mr. Snyder, if he would be willing to be taped.”

Students purchased strips of duct tape, with all proceeds earmarked for LLS.

In addition to the taping, collections are currently ongoing in classrooms, with a contest between classrooms to see who collects the most.

Snyder says he could see a lot of the students were enjoying the taping process.

“I’m glad that everyone had a good time and the Student Council was able to raise a little money for charity,” remarked Snyder. “My only request was to not put any tape on my skin, although many of the kids wanted to slap a piece across my forehead!” He laughs, but is quick to add, “They really were respectful.”

Snyder commented on his experience with the American Ninja Warrior program, which took place this past season 9 in Cleveland.

“Unfortunately my run didn’t make it to television — only 37 competitors were shown out of 100. But I’m going to try again this year for season 10. I have to go through the entire entry process again which includes a lengthy application and 3 minute video highlighting why I should be picked.”

Snyder says he started training four years ago.

“My kids are really the ones who motivated me and believed I could do it. The student body and staff here at school have been unbelievably supportive of this endeavor. My kids compete in youth ninja competitions, too. The kids and I will head to Brooklyn in two weeks for our first post-ANW competition. I’m looking forward to training and competing this winter, all while hoping that lightning strikes twice and I get the call back to compete on the show this spring,” Snyder said.

Trembley said a link to share for donations to the LLS is on the Fort Plain School Facebook page so folks can donate online. The link is: events.lls.org/pages/uny/Ft-Plain-High-School-2018.

Country Preacher

by Pastor Dan West

Some seem to have a misconception about what a life of faith means. Yes, Jesus is the originator and completer of our faith (Hebrews 12:2), but what does He expect of us as believers in Him? Our salvation is clearly a result of our faith and faith alone. Ephesians 2:8 says we're "saved through faith . . . not of ourselves, it's a gift of God." But does this mean we just sit back and expect Him to do it all? On the contrary, we have an active part in it.

A truck driver and his rig make a good example of this. The driver doesn't have to pull the load, but if he doesn't get in the cab, start the engine and shift the gears, the load isn't going anywhere. As he does his part, he has faith that the truck will haul the load, but he doesn't sit back, fold his arms and relax (yet). He has work to do steering his predetermined course, keeping track of the gauges, shifting when necessary and adjusting for changing conditions like rain. As a team, the driver and the power of the truck get the job done.

We believers are in a partnership like that with God. He predetermines our course and provides the power, but we have to constantly submit to Him, resist the devil, draw near to God, purify our hearts, and humble ourselves. When we do that, James 4:10 says He will "lift us up." We cannot do what God does, and He will not do what we can.

Wash all reusable bags regularly: Here's how Clothing, linens and even curtains may get their regular rotation through the laundry room, helping such items to remain clean and fresh. But other items relied on regularly may never make it to the washing machine to get a healthy helping of suds, even though they probably should.

Such is the case for backpacks, lunch sacks and reusable shopping totes. These items endure substantial wear and tear, and may be in need of a good wash.

Backpacks

Backpacks can get grimy fast. Designed to be worn on the back, backpacks are often tossed onto the floor or shoved into dirty lockers. As a result, backpacks may be covered in dirt, pen stains, food spills, and bacteria, necessitating a thorough cleaning.

Because backpacks

have all sorts of pockets, straps and zippers, some people find handwashing to be an easier way to prevent damage during washing. Use a vacuum nozzle to clean out crumbs and other debris. Dip a sponge or cloth into sudsy water and use it to clean the interior. A scrub brush can scour the outside. Rinse and hang upside down to dry, suggests Good Housekeeping.

For those who want to put the pack into the washing machine, first place the backpack inside of a laundry bag or pillowcase that can be closed. This will prevent the pack from getting caught in the machine's agitator or stretching out the fabric. Skip the dryer and let the pack air dry so that it won't shrink.

Lunch bags and boxes

Check the care label to see if the bag can be machine-washed. Many can withstand a mild detergent and the gentle cycle of a machine. Otherwise, mild dish soap and water can be used to hand wash the bag. Like the backpack, let these bags or boxes air dry for best results, says the cleaning resource Clean My Space. Sprinkle baking soda inside of bags or boxes as a natural deodorizer, if necessary.

Reusable shopping bags

An eco-friendly alternative to plastic or paper bags from the store, reusable totes can dramatically reduce waste that ends up in landfills and waterways. These bags routinely come in contact with fresh and frozen foods, and bacteria, yeast and mold may eventually grow on the surfaces of the bags. Wash the bags after each use and store them in a place where they are not susceptible to mold growth.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services says cloth reusable bags should be washed in a washing machine using laundry detergent and dried in the dryer or air-dried. Plastic-lined reusable bags should be scrubbed using hot water and soap and air-dried. Dry bags completely before storing.

Use separate bags for raw meats, seafood and produce. Label these bags to avoid confusion.

Reusable bags should not be stored in dark, warm and humid environments that can promote bacteria growth. Keep them in cool, dry areas — not in the trunk of a car — for best results.

Fascinating facts about felines

Many cat owners are fascinated by their feline friends. Cats can be quirky, and their behavior often amuses their owners.

But there is more to cats than their quirky personalities. The following are some interesting facts about felines, courtesy of Animal Planet.

- Much like humans can be righthanded or lefthanded, cats can favor their right paw or left paw. Cats can even be ambidextrous.
 - Cats spend roughly one-third of their waking hours cleaning themselves. In fact, cats' tongues are so strong that they can lick animal bone clean.
 - A single litter of kittens can produce multiple "father" cats.
 - Selkirk cats are known for their distinctive curly coats. But Selkirk cats slowly lose their natural-born curly coats in the months after their births. The coat begins to grow again when Selkirk cats reach eight months of age.
 - While cats are partial to litter boxes, their skill sets enable them to learn how to use toilets.
 - Though cats might not have the skill set to operate blow driers, 25 percent of cat owners use driers to dry their cats' coats after bathing.
 - Kittens may be adorable and cuddly, but their teeth are most sharp at this stage of their life. Upon reaching six months of age, cats lose their needle-sharp milk teeth.
 - Once they reach one week old, cats start to dream while sleeping.
 - Cats don't just close their eyes because they're tired. In fact, many cats close their eyes when they're happy or pleased.
 - Cats' pregnancies last just nine weeks.
 - Cats can jump up to five times their own heights.
 - While not all cats with blue eyes are deaf, many cats with blue eyes cannot hear. That said, many kittens are born with blue eyes, only to have their eye color change with age.
 - Cats have a naturally strong aversion to all things citrus.
 - Cats of the opposite sex tend to make better housemates than cats of the same sex.
 - Cats can become addicted to tuna, potentially resulting in a vitamin E deficiency.
 - The majority of cats do not have eyelashes.
 - Cats tend to have 12 whiskers on each side of their face.
- More fascinating facts about felines can be found at www.animalplanet.com.

Blushing Apple Butter
A flavorful cholesterol- and fat-free spread. Yummy on toast or bagels.
3 3/4 pounds Granny Smith apples (about 8 large), peeled, cored and thinly sliced
1 1/2 cups apple cider or apple juice
1 cup cranberries
3 strips (3-by-1-inch each) lemon peel

3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 1/2 cups sugar
1. In 5-quart Dutch oven, heat apples, cider, cranberries, lemon peel and lemon juice to boiling over high heat. Reduce heat to low; simmer, uncovered, 10 minutes or until apples are very soft, stirring occasionally.
2. Stir in sugar; heat to boiling over high heat. Reduce heat to medium; cook, partially covered, 1 hour or until apple butter is very thick, stirring occasionally (mixture may sputter and splash, so be careful when stirring).

3. Spoon apple butter into blender in small batches and blend (with center part of blender cover removed to allow steam to escape) until smooth.

4. Spoon apple butter into jars or crocks for gift-giving. Store tightly covered in refrigerator for up to 3 weeks. Makes about 4 1/2 cups.
* Each serving: About 30 calories, 8g carbohydrates.

Kindergarten Halloween Parade at Arkell Center

The Annual Canajoharie Kindergarten Parade came to Arkell Center recently. Over 60 students came dressed in their Halloween costumes and sang a variety of spooky songs. Arkell Center tenants, residents, friends, grandparents and parents, joined them. As usual the huge crowd enjoyed cider and donuts as they listened to the enthusiastic singing. We can't wait for next year!

Six tips to help keep your drive distraction-free

(BPT) — As you drive down the street, the threat of potential distractions is everywhere. Federal research shows that distracted driving is a factor in one out of every six crashes, and accounts for 5,000 automobile crash-related fatalities each year.

While teens are commonly associated with distracted-driving issues — particularly texting — the issue affects drivers of all ages. To help reduce distracted driving crash-related injuries, and loss of life, the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons and the Alliance of Automobile Manufacturers (Auto Alliance) offer these tips to help drivers keep their eyes on the road and hands on the wheel.

- Gear up before you go out. Whether it's your sunglasses, your Bluetooth® earpiece or your favorite hat, putting accessories on before starting your car allows you to keep your hands on the wheel, and not your wardrobe while driving.

- Stop for a bite. A quick bite for lunch should be enjoyed in a restaurant, or your non-moving vehicle, instead of on the go while you're driving. This allows you to take a break, enjoy your food and not worry about spilling beverages on yourself.

- Don't be afraid to pull over. If another matter begs your attention — such as settling a disagreement between your children — pull the car over to handle the situation properly rather than trying to attend to it while you are driving.

- Have a plan in place. Sometimes this is easier said than done. However, if you are traveling somewhere for the first time, you should understand your route before starting the drive. Program your GPS, or share printed directions with your navigator before you depart.

- Call them back. Cell phone usage is one of the leading causes of distracted driving-related crashes and not all of them are related solely to texting. If your phone rings while you're in the car and you do not have a hands-free headset already on, let the caller go to voicemail. You can always call them back when you arrive at your destination or your next stop.

- If you don't need it, store it. Sporting equipment, kids' toys or groceries, your car is the transport home for many things and sometimes those items can jostle back and forth while you're driving — particularly on those sharp turns. And when things start moving, your natural reaction is to take your eyes off the road and reach for them. Instead, secure items in the trunk or in another storage compartment before the drive.

Keeping your eyes on the road and your hands on the wheel is one of the most important things you do every single day you choose to drive so be sure to apply the tips above and make driving your No. 1 priority. Your loved ones and those you share the road with will thank you for it. For even more helpful tips and strategies to minimize driving distractions, visit www.decidetodrive.org.
