Senior News Line

Here's How to Stay Cool This Summer

Summer isn't officially here, but there is at least one location in the country where the temperature reached 100 degrees F. Much of the Sunbelt already is seeing highs in the 90s. All of those numbers are going to rise in the coming weeks. It's the time of year for seniors to beware the heat. Here are some tips:

- If you have window air conditioners that someone installs for you each year, schedule it earlier rather than later. Once the interior walls in your house get warm, it's hard to bring those temperatures down.
- Consider sun-blocking drapes for windows on the south and west side of the house. Keep them closed during the heat of the day.

Beat the Heat This Summer

• Join afternoon activities at the library and senior center. That way you'll be in air conditioning when the heat is at its worst. If you can get to the mall, go there. Sit in the food court and read a book, or walk some laps for exercise.

- Plan your errands for early or late in the day.
- Call your doctor's office and ask about your water intake. Be sure to tell them all of your medications; some drugs can make it too easy to become dehydrated, especially if you take diuretics. Remember that sugary drinks don't count as liquid intake.
- Keep an eye on your neighbors if they're out in the yard. If you go out, use a wide-brim woven hat. Check the weather and keep an eye on the heat index. Wear loose cotton clothing.

Remember: We seniors don't always know when we're getting overheated. Heat exhaustion or heat-stroke can creep up on us because our circulatory system doesn't work like it used to. Know the symptoms of heat exhaustion: weakness, headaches, dizziness and muscle cramps. The more serious heatstroke can follow only 10-15 minutes later.

Avoid Lyme disease while gardening

by Dr. Leonard Perry, Horticulture Professor Emeritus, University of Vermont

Lyme disease is a potentially disabling disease of joints and the nervous system, spread by deer ticks. Knowing about this disease, how it is spread and steps to avoid it will allow you to continue gardening or enjoying the outdoors, along with your pets, without concern for these spider relatives.

Although this disease is rarely fatal, it can cause debilitating illness including heart irregularities, facial paralysis and impairment of the nervous system. Early symptoms to watch for include minor symptoms such as skin rash, fever, headaches and muscle and joint pain. Very characteristic, but not always present, is a skin rash called “erythema migrans”. This rash appears as a red circular patch at the site of a tick bite within three days to one month. As it enlarges, this patch often takes on a “doughnut” or “bulls eye” appearance.

As ticks like warm spots, parts of the body to watch are thighs, groin, trunk, scalp and armpits. Ticks don’t fly or jump, so you must come in contact with them and they crawl once on a body. Ticks are generally present within 18 to 24 inches of the ground.

Although there are no vaccines to prevent Lyme disease, it can be treated with antibiotics once diagnosed. Prompt treatment, however, is important.

Three types of ticks can carry Lyme disease, but deer (black-legged) ticks spread this in the Northeastern and North Central states. Ticks feed on small rodents, birds and deer that may carry the Lyme disease but not be affected by it. This is where the ticks pick up the bacterium and then transmit it to humans.

Although deer are what most think of as carrying ticks, field mice in many cases may be spreading them more widely. Opossums aren’t usually thought of regarding deer ticks, but they’re a huge help with them. As most mammals wandering through grass and brush, they attract ticks but, being very effective groomers, they kill 95 percent of ticks that try to feed on them.

Obviously, avoiding places where ticks live or checking for tick bites if you are in such areas is a primary means of the prevention of Lyme disease. Ticks like cool, wet places such as wooded areas, piles of debris, stone walls and high grasses.

Since a deer tick must remain attached for 36 to 48 hours to cause infection, frequent checking for ticks is important. Both the nymph and adult stages of deer ticks can transmit Lyme disease.

If you find ticks, remember not all carry this disease. Half or more of tick bites cause an allergic reaction, but all such symptoms shouldn’t be confused with the symptoms of Lyme disease. Such non-serious allergic reactions appear within a few hours or days, do not expand or have the bulls-eye feature, and disappear within a few days. Infections from Lyme disease usually start out about two inches wide, then expand. If the red area from a bite is under the size of a quarter, this is likely not Lyme disease and should disappear soon.

No matter what kind of tick you find, deer or otherwise, you probably want to remove it. DO NOT try to remove it with heat as from a match, or alcohol. This will only irritate the tick and cause it to more quickly insert more toxin. Instead, use a pair of fine-tipped tweezers to grasp the mouthparts of the tick as close to the skin as possible and firmly pull straight out. Fine-tipped is important, rather than normal tweezers that will simply squish ticks. Best to use is an inexpensive tick removal tool you can find at most drugstores.

Tips to prevent tick bites, in addition to avoiding their habitats, include:

- Wear light-colored clothing so you can spot ticks more easily.
- Wear long-sleeved shirts and pants to minimize exposure.

- Tuck pant legs inside socks or boots to keep ticks on the outside.
 - Use an insect repellent containing 20 to 30 percent DEET, 10 percent for children, or picaridin. Most effective at killing ticks is permethrin, but only use this on clothing as it becomes ineffective on skin.
- You also may find any number of repellents based on essential plant oils. Recent research (www.cdc.gov/lyme under prevention/natural repellents) showed effectiveness of several such oils such as rosemary, garlic, lemongrass, geranium and others.
- After being outdoors in high risk areas, inspect body surfaces closely. Place clothes in a hot drier to kill any ticks if on clothes.

Whatchamacallits

Some of the items featured in Whatchamacallits may be true whatchamacallits. Others are very well known. This is Whatchamacallit is a piece of handwoven fabric.

Weaving is thought to have started in the Paleolithic era, 27,000 years ago. Although that is the current theory, it is well known that weaving has been around as early as 7,000 B.C. Early textiles were made from flax, cotton, wool or silk, depending on the civilization and materials available.

Weaving requires a basic but repetitive process. First, some thread is set up vertically on a type of board, becoming the taught warp that is the base of the project. Then more thread is interlaced horizontally, moving around the warp to create different patterns and textures. This piece is called the weft or fill.

The pattern used in this Whatchamacallit is called the diamond twill. It is a pretty pattern and rather popular, but not the most basic method of weaving. This pattern starts with passing the weft over one or more warp threads and then under two or more warp threads. This is continued back and forth across the width of the project until the desired length is achieved.

Weaving always requires a great amount of time and effort, but the type of loom used could help the process along.

Last week’s Whatchamacallit is still a mystery and we are looking for any information about what it could be.

If you have a guess or know what these items are, then we would like to hear from you.

You can call Camden at 518.673.0144 or email cbarden@leepub.com.

Do you have your own Whatchamacallit?

Send a photo and short description to cbarden@leepub.com or call Camden at 518.673.0144

Country Preacher

by Pastor Dan West
In James chapter 3

James uses our control of our tongue (signifying the things we say) as a gage of our faith. The word "perfect" in verse 2 means complete or to have reached a goal. Just as a small bit in a horse's mouth can change its direction and a small rudder on a large ship changes its course, so our diminutive tongue can alter the course of our life and others' around us!

James, in chapter 3, verse 5, points out that a "little fire" (think "match") can start a "great matter" (think "wild fire"). He then likens the tongue to a match that can "set on fire the course of nature!" One person's gossip can damage the lives of many people. You've seen it as well as I have. James says in verse 8 that the tongue is "full of deadly poison!" The old war-time saying "Loose lips sink ships" is just a modern version of James' admonition here.

Verse 10 says that we both bless and curse from the same mouth;

this should not be so he says, and gives several examples in the following verses of how unnatural and wrong it is.

The apostle Paul tells us in Ephesians 4:29 that everything we say should build up, strengthen (edify) those who hear it. Let's all work on that.

Strange but True

by Samantha Weaver

• It was French author, philosopher and journalist Albert Camus who made the following sage observation: "Nobody realizes that some people expend tremendous energy merely to be normal."

• Famously flamboyant country singer and songwriter Dolly Parton once entered a Dolly Parton look-alike contest — and she lost.

• If you're a sailor you're probably familiar with the hazards of being out on the water: high seas, storms, hidden reefs. You probably wouldn't count whales among the dangers, but you'd be wrong. In 2010, on a day sail out of Table Bay Harbor in South Africa, a couple on a 30-foot sailboat were whale-watching when one got too close for comfort. A 40-ton whale they had been viewing breached right next to the boat and landed on the deck, breaking off the mast and then thrashing around before sliding back into the water. The whale lost some skin and blubber, but was otherwise unharmed; the couple were lucky to still have a seaworthy craft and made it safely back to the harbor.

• Married women aren't likely to be surprised by the following tidbit of information: Studies show that women with husbands typically do 30 percent more housework than single women do.

• If you're heading to the state of Washington with mischief on your mind, you'll need to keep in mind this state law: "A motorist with criminal intentions [must] stop at the city limits and telephone the chief of police as he [or she] is entering the town." I bet that one has been really effective in stopping crime.

• It's been reported that singer Sting doesn't use deodorant. In fact, after interviewing him for a concert once, the journalists nicknamed him "Stink."

Thought for the Day: "It's far better to be unhappy alone than unhappy with someone." — Marilyn Monroe

AVOID from 9

About 70 percent of people that contract Lyme disease catch it from ticks in their own yards. Tips to minimize ticks in your landscape include:

- Keep your yard clean and free of debris, grass clippings, and leaf litter.
- Keep grass mowed, especially along property edges.

- Trim shrubs near walks and patios and keep groundcovers away from these and play areas.

- Create a three-foot wide barrier, three inches deep, between lawns and wooded areas using gravel, mulch or wood chips.

- Keep woodpiles away from gardens and lawns.

- If you have deer nearby, or visiting your landscape, begin deer-proofing techniques. There are some articles on this on my website (perrysperennials.info).

While one of the original web resources for tick information was from the University of Rhode Island (www.tickcounter.org), many states now have excellent resources too, as does the National Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (www.cdc.gov/ticks).

Planning for a memorable and happy graduation day

Graduation day can be an exciting and nerve-racking experience. Steeped in tradition, graduation signifies the end of the line for academia for many students.

Knowing what to expect during the commencement ceremony and being prepared can help tame nerves and ensure the day moves along as smoothly as possible.

Get clothing set

Choose your attire several days before the graduation ceremony.

Try on the clothing that will be worn beneath the graduation gown along with the gown to ensure everything fits well. Collared shirts look classic beneath the gown for both female and male graduates. However, schools may have their own dress requirements that should be followed. Iron or have the dry cleaners press all items so they are crisp and free of wrinkles.

It's a good idea to wear

Graduation is full of tradition. Planning for the day can tame nerves and make it an enjoyable experience.

FOR SALE BY OWNER:

3-4BR, 2 full bath, beautiful brick home in a very nice, quiet Nelliston neighborhood! Nice backyard! Beautiful view of the river out back! You will love the hardwood floors throughout, high ceilings, lots of storage space in this 1890's home and an exceptionally large garage! It has a 2 year old roof, all new electrical and plumbing throughout. Front porch, full basement, could potentially be a 2 family rental property!

$80,000 OBO - For more information please contact Casey at 518-320-4556.

flat shoes for the commencement ceremony. Whether traversing the football field or the school auditorium, flat, comfortable shoes will be easy to walk in and help graduates avoid slipping or tripping.

Fuel up

Depending on the size of the graduating class, commencement ceremonies can take a few hours. Make sure to eat a hearty breakfast and be well-hydrated prior to leaving the house. If possible, bring along a small bottle of water. Outdoor ceremonies or those in stuffy auditoriums can mean contending with sun and warmth. Sipping water can prevent overheating.

Leave travel time

Much of the community will be en route to the graduation, making for congested roads and difficult parking situations. Do not add to nerves by rushing around. Give yourself an extra half hour or so to arrive at the destination and get settled. Suggest an early departure for guests as well, as the parking lot or on-street parking will fill up quickly.

Expect limited tickets

Many schools have space restrictions and can only accommodate a predetermined number of attendees. Tickets may be limited to a specific number per graduate. Extend a courtesy to those who cannot be invited by explaining the ticket policy. Find a way to honor loved ones in another way, such as during a toast at an after-party or with personalized photo gifts.

Practice ceremony etiquette

The school will set the tone for the commencement ceremony. Formal schools may have a more buttoned-up atmosphere, while other schools embrace livelier traditions. Heed the direction of faculty, as there will be plenty of time to let loose after the ceremony.

Make sure that you give all graduates the respect they deserve by turning off cell phones. In addition, remain seated until the ceremony is over and allow each graduate to get individualized recognition and take photos without feeling rushed.

Wear academic dress properly

Graduation caps are worn flat on the head, parallel to the floor and with the front point centered on the forehead. The gown should be free of jewelry and flowers. Some schools will adorn caps and gowns with academic regalia, while others will not. Reserve your graduation party as a chance to personalize if you so desire.

Kovels: Antiques and Collecting

by Terry and Kim Kovel
Cabinet of curiosities

“Cabinet of curiosities” was the name of an important room in the 1600s and, years later, a “cabinet of curiosities” meant just a cabinet. The room often had displays of skeletons, minerals, horns and plants, and some man-made fantasies like a mermaid or piece of the “True Cross.” Collections of medals, silverware, stamps, minerals and other unusual things were popular in later cabinets. The early elaborate rooms with unusual displays were a sign of social importance. The simpler cabinet suggested the owner was a scientist or researcher with less status. A recent James Julia auction sold a Victorian bird’s eye maple specimen cabinet with carved trim, columns, cases, drawers of various sizes, locks, keys and a mirror. It had been refinished, so the 63-inch high cabinet sold for $1,936. The cabinets sell quickly, no doubt to be used by a 21st-century collector.

Q: I have a Pairpoint pickle castor, but I don’t have the glass insert for it. Will this drastically reduce the price? Should I try to find a suitable piece of glassware and marry the piece or sell it as it is?

A: Pickle castors were popular in about 1890. A silver or other metal frame held a glass jar, which usually had a silver or silver-plated top. The holder had a handle and a hook that held a pair of tongs. Replacement frames and glass jars have been made. You may be able to find a replacement glass jar online, or at antiques shows and shops. A replacement glass insert won’t add enough to the price to cover the cost of the glass and your time. Original pickle castors with colored glass insets sell from $100-$250.

Q: I have an Edison GEM lightbulb from about 1905 with the sticker still on it. Can you tell me its approximate value and who would be interested in this?

A: The letters GEM stand for General Electric Metallized. The GEM filament was invented by Willis Rodney Whitney, the director of the General Electric research lab in Schenectady, NY. GEM lightbulbs were made from 1905 to 1918, when production stopped to conserve fuel during World War I. There are collectors who want any unusual lightbulbs. Look for sources online that sell vintage lightbulbs. Most also will buy them. GEM bulbs sell online for $10 to $15.

Current prices

Yo-yo, tin lithograph, space shuttle, astronaut in rocket, red, yellow, blue and white, Japan, 1950s, $15.

Corncob holders, skew-ers, sterling silver, corn-cob shape handles with spear-shaped spikes, signed, Webster, 1960s, 3 inches, set of 8, $135.

Fishing rod, wooden halibut rod with copper reel, Mathews Conveyer Co., c. 1910, 39 inches, $365.

Poison ring, silver and gold gilt, garnet cabochon center, oval locket with clasp, rope twist and scroll design, c. 1800, size 10, $1,040.

Tip: Clean your jewelry with jewelry cleaner or detergent suds and warm water. Brush the back to remove soap residue or other dirt from the back of the stones.

(c) 2018 King Features Synd., Inc.

This strange cabinet was made in the 19th century to display many small, unusual items, known then as curiosities. It auctioned for $1,936.

To your good health

by Keith Roach, M.D.

The case against hydrogen peroxide

DEAR DR. ROACH: My dental hygienist recommends rinsing your mouth with hydrogen peroxide to kill germs after flossing. Lately I have heard that using too much hydrogen peroxide can be harmful. What are your thoughts? — T.W.

ANSWER: Hydrogen peroxide is a powerful antiseptic that has some usefulness for household objects; however, I don't recommend it as an oral rinse. It is too toxic to tissues. In a 1993 study, even hydrogen peroxide solutions diluted to half and quarter strengths caused damage to mucous membranes and caused "overwhelmingly negative subjective reactions." Thus they were not recommended for oral care. A regular mouthwash is a much better choice, and your dentist can prescribe a medicated mouthwash if needed.

Incidentally, I don't recommend hydrogen peroxide for cleaning cuts and abrasions, either. It isn't effective at inhibiting bacterial growth. I recommend careful cleaning with mild soap and water or saline and an antibiotic ointment like Bacitracin.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I have heard of yeast infections, but I don't know what causes them. How do they affect the body, and what can be done to get rid of them? — C.R.

ANSWER: Certain yeasts, but especially the Candida species, are found on our skin, mucus membranes and GI tract. They normally live in balance with the 100 trillion or so bacteria we carry around. However, yeast can cause disease that ranges from fairly mild, like thrush of the mouth or vagina, to life-threatening, like a blood-borne, widely disseminated invasive infection.

Candida infection of mucus membranes is usually caused by changes in our bacteria, especially after the use of antibiotics. The antibiotics kill the bacteria they are supposed to (hopefully), but they also may kill the healthy bacteria that assist us in digestion (leading to diarrhea or worse), and this allows the other bacteria and yeast to grow.

Some people with genetic faults in their immune system are predisposed to chronic Candida infections. These are uncommon but can be severe, and may require treatment by specialists, such as infectious disease doctors and immunologists.

The life-threatening yeast infections generally happen in people with severe illness and with poor immune system function.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I have been diagnosed with Fuchs' corneal dystrophy by an ophthalmologist, whom I saw for an eye exam recently. Would you please tell me more about this disease? Is there any treatment? What can I expect in the future? It is getting harder to read and do close work. — N.O.

ANSWER: Fuchs' dystrophy is a condition of older eyes, which happens when the cells in the innermost lining of the cornea (the translucent, colorless front part of the eye) degenerate, causing, initially, deposits in the cornea and later swelling of the cornea. The disease has a complex genetic pattern of inheritance, and tends to progress slowly. Treatments include soft contact lenses to "bandage" the cornea, and eyedrops. Transplant surgery of the affected lining of the cornea (called Descemet's membrane), or the whole cornea, is the definitive treatment.

Paw's Corner

Keeping small pets safe from coyotes

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: Yesterday we had a very scary incident in our backyard. I let our Llasa Apso, "Cherie," run free, knowing that she wouldn't wander into the woods as long as I was on the back porch, watching her. I was reading the newspaper when Cherie started barking. Looking up, I saw two coyotes at the edge of the woods, slowly approaching her.

I ran toward them, waving my arms and yelling like a crazy person. The coyotes took one look at me and disappeared into the woods. I picked up Cherie and brought her inside.

She wasn't hurt, but the situation could have quickly turned tragic if I hadn't looked up in time. For now, I'm keeping her indoors and only letting her out on a leash to relieve herself. Is there anything else I can do? — Bob in Leominster, MA

DEAR BOB: Keeping Cherie on a leash for the short term is a good idea, and I'm very glad you were supervising her backyard exploration. Contact the local animal control agency to report the coyotes' behavior.

Long term, you may want to put up fencing — at least 6 feet high and 1 foot below ground — to deter the coyotes, as well as motion-activated lights.

Make sure to keep trash securely covered and, if possible, indoors. Don't feed pets outside, because coyotes may investigate the food smell. Clear brush from your property and keep hedges trimmed.

On the plus side, you may never see more than two full-grown coyotes in your area — they are very territorial. If they become problematic, though, your municipality may need to step in and remove or eliminate the coyotes.

Send your questions, tips or comments to ask@pawscorner.com.

Now here's a tip

by JoAnn Derson

- "Restore the shine on dull buttons by painting them with a coat of clear nail polish. I've renewed the buttons on my cardigan several times this way. I think it also strengthens the threads holding the buttons on." — R.H. in Maine
- "Turn a regular bra into a racerback strap with a simple paperclip. Just tuck both arm straps into the paperclip and adjust the point on your back where they come together. This has saved me when I had a nice tank top under a light jacket but then wanted to remove the jacket without my straps showing." — A.J. in California

- A paintbrush makes it really easy to clean out the crevices in your car. You can tape it to a ruler to get a longer reach and use it between the chairs and the center console, where there are a lot of crumbs but it's hard to reach.

- "I found an all-plastic mattress cover, meant to be a protection against spills or wetting the bed. I use it instead to protect my outside picnic table when the kids are doing messy crafts, like painting or working with glue or dyes. Because it's a fitted sheet, it grips the table in any amount of wind, so it never flies up. I can hose it off to clean up, and when it's dry I just store it until next time." — M.W. in Minnesota

- Thrift store pillowcases make an excellent dust cover for stored purses and bags. They can be trimmed to size, if necessary, and tied closed with a bit of string.

- "For fun pancake shapes, use a turkey baster. Fill it with pancake batter, then spell or draw on a heated and oiled pan. Just make sure your letters are backward to start with; they look better when flipped!" — E.L. in Washington

Why should I be careful about the food I eat?

Montgomery County Public Health wants to remind the public that fresh fruits and vegetables can carry germs that cause severe illness. You can protect yourself from many infections by preparing them properly. Germs in food and water can cause diarrhea, upset stomach, vomiting, stomach cramps, fever, headaches, muscle pain and bloodstream infections.

Raw fruits and vegetables are safe to eat if you wash them carefully first. To avoid illness:

- Purchase produce that is not bruised or damaged.
- Wash hands with warm soap and water for at least 20 seconds before and after handling fresh fruits and vegetables.
- Clean all surfaces and utensils with hot water and soap, including cutting boards, counter tops, peelers and knives that will touch fresh fruits or vegetables before and after food preparation.
- Thoroughly wash all fresh fruits and vegetables under running tap water. Even if you plan to peel the produce before eating, it is still important to wash it first. Packaged fruits and vegetables labeled "ready to eat", "washed" or "triple washed" do not usually require washing, however it is a good practice to thoroughly wash anything fresh you will be consuming. When selecting fresh cut produce such as a half a watermelon or bagged mixed salad greens – choose only those that are refrigerated or surrounded by ice.

- Rub firm-skin fruits and vegetables under running tap water or scrub with a clean vegetable brush while rinsing with running tap water.
- Dry fruits and vegetables with a clean cloth towel or paper towel.
- Never use detergent or bleach to wash fresh fruits or vegetables.
- Raw Sprouts carry a risk of foodborne illness. Unlike other fresh produce, seeds need warm and humid conditions to sprout and grow. However, these conditions are also ideal for the growth of bacteria, including Salmonella, Listeria and E.

coli. Rinsing sprouts first will not remove bacteria. Homegrown sprouts also present a health risk if they are eaten raw or lightly cooked. Cooking thoroughly will kill the bacteria. Request that raw sprouts not be added to your food when eating out.

• Most juices sold in the USA are processed or pasteurized to kill harmful bacteria. There are some juices that are not, and have special labeling such as: "Warning: This product has not been pasteurized and therefore may contain harmful bacteria that can cause illness in children, the elderly and persons with weakened immune systems." If you or someone in your family is at risk for a foodborne illness, they should not drink unpasteurized juice unless it is brought to a boil first.

Raspberry-Lemonade Granita

Here's a cool way to celebrate the start of raspberry season.

- 2 to 3 lemons
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 3 cups water
- 1 pint raspberries
- 1. From lemons, grate 1 teaspoon peel and squeeze 1/4 cup juice.
- 2. In 1-quart saucepan, heat sugar, lemon peel and 1 1/2 cups water to boiling over high heat, stirring to dissolve sugar. Remove saucepan from heat; stir in raspberries. Cool sugar syrup to room temperature.
- 3. In food processor with knife blade attached, blend mixture until pureed. With back of spoon, press puree through sieve into bowl; discard seeds. Stir in lemon juice and remaining 1 1/2 cups water. Pour into 13-by-9-inch metal baking pan.
- 4. Cover and freeze mixture about 1 1/2 hours or until frozen around the edges. With fork, scrape ice, mixing it from the edge to the center. Repeat process about every 30 minutes or until mixture turns into ice shards, about 1 1/2 hours.
- 5. Serve granita right away, spooning shards into chilled dessert dishes or wine goblets. Or, cover and freeze up to 1 month. To serve, let stand about 5 minutes at room temperature to soften slightly. Makes about 8 cups, or 16 servings.

* Each serving: About 45 calories, 0g protein, 11g carbohydrate, 0mg cholesterol, 0mg sodium, 1g fiber.

Stop sand from spoiling summer fun

Few things are as synonymous with summer recreation as a day at the beach enjoying the sun, sand and surf. Whiling away the hours at the coast is an ideal way to get fresh air and enjoy family or solitary time and also can be an entertaining way to exercise and learn about marine life.

While a beach isn't a beach without sand, sand can adversely affect beach excursions. Sand is a loose, granular material that blankets the coastlines of beaches, lakes and riverbeds. Depending on location, sand is comprised of many materials and comes in a vast array of colors. The resource LiveScience says silicon dioxide in the form of quartz is the most common component of sand. Feldspar, mica and rock fragments are other materials. In tropical locations, the sand varies because there are no rich sources of quartz nearby. Tropical sand may take on a white or pastel hue thanks to the shells and skeletons of reef-living marine organisms that make up the sand in these locations. Black sand is comprised of volcanic glass.

Regardless of its composition, sand is a nuisance to some people. Because it is lightweight and can stick to clothing and other items, sand often follows beach revelers home. During and after a beach trip, these suggestions can make sand less problematic.

- Protect the skin. Sand reflects the sun's rays and can be hot to the touch. Experts estimate that beach sand can reach 120 to 130 F. Wear sandals or water shoes to protect delicate undersides of the feet. And don't forget to apply sunscreen to all areas of the feet, which are vulnerable to sunburn.

- Powder up. Baby powder, made of simple cornstarch, can help remove sand from the feet and body. Apply a thin layer to areas where stubborn sand is sticking, and it will fall away.

- Avoid digging dangers. Digging holes in the sand seems like fun, but it can be dangerous if a collapse occurs. Harvard researchers have catalogued 72 sand collapse stories over the past decade-plus, and 60 proved fatal. A good rule of thumb is to dig sand holes that are no deeper than the knees of the smallest person in the hole.

- Rinse all items. Shake and rinse all beach toys of sand before returning home. Hang towels, coverups and other clothing outside to shake off on a clothesline before laundering. This will cut down on the amount of sand tracked inside.

Sand can be a bit of a nuisance. Make summer excursions more fun by handling sand effectively.

Identifying and understanding dehydration

Dehydration is a simple condition to understand, but one that can lead to a host of complicated problems. Many people may be quick to associate dehydration with athletes, particularly those who exercise outdoors in warm climates. But dehydration can affect anyone at any time, which only highlights why men, women and even children should learn to identify signs of dehydration and what to do should it surface.

What is dehydration?

Dehydration happens when the loss of body fluids, namely water, exceeds the amount of fluids that is taken in. When a person is diagnosed as dehydrated, that typically means his or her body has lost so much fluid that it has begun to lose its ability to function normally.

Who is vulnerable to dehydration?

Anyone can suffer from dehydration, which can be especially dangerous to young children and older adults. The Mayo Clinic notes that older adults, who naturally have a lower volume of water in their bodies, may not feel thirsty until they are already dehydrated, so it's important that aging men and women understand that thirst is not always the best indicator that they're becoming dehydrated. Babies may become dehydrated when they get sick with an illness that causes vomiting and diarrhea. But even teens and otherwise healthy adults can suffer from dehydration.

What are the symptoms of dehydration?

Symptoms of dehydration vary with age. Parents of babies and young children should be on the lookout for signs of dehydrations, as infants and even toddlers may not be able to communicate that something is wrong.

Signs of dehydration in infants and young children include dry mouth and tongue, a lack of tears when crying, sunken eyes and cheeks, and a sunken soft spot on the top of the skull. In addition, babies who produce no wet diapers for three hours may be suffering from dehydration. A sense of listlessness or irritability in infants and young children is another potential indicator of dehydration.

Adults who experience extreme thirst may be suffering from dehydration. Less frequent urination and a dark-colored urine when going to the bathroom also is symptomatic of dehydration. Fatigue, dizziness and confusion are some additional indicators of dehydration in adults.

Can dehydration be prevented?

Dehydration can affect anyone, but there are ways to prevent it, even among those people who are especially susceptible to dehydration, such as children and older adults.

Parents of babies who are vomiting or experiencing diarrhea should speak with their pediatricians and discuss the ways to prevent such children from becoming dehydrated. Breastfeeding more frequently and giving the baby a medicine such as Pedialyte® can prevent the occurrence of dehydration in babies who are sick. The Mayo Clinic recommends parents take a proactive approach to preventing dehydration in young children, meaning they should not wait until dehydration occurs or symptoms of dehydration present themselves before taking action.

Adults who want to prevent dehydration should drink plenty of fluids and include lots of fruits and vegetables in their diets. Such foods contain lots of water and can help the body avoid becoming dehydrated.

The Mayo Clinic recommends that athletes begin hydrating the day before engaging in strenuous exercise. A telltale sign of a well-hydrated body is clear, diluted urine. Athletes should replenish their fluids during exercise and continue doing so even after they finish working out or competing.

Older adults should make a concerted effort to drink more fluids when suffering from minor illnesses, which is when such men and women most commonly become dehydrated. Drink extra water when battling influenza, bronchitis or bladder infections, remembering that feelings of thirst often surface only after the body has become dehydrated.

Dehydration is a serious yet preventable threat to men, women and children. Learn more at www.mayoclinic.org.
