The Little Paper with BIG Results

Serving the Homes of the Mohawk Valley

Volume 4 • Number 14

Wow – or Bow Wow! I made it to the cover of the Little Paper with BIG Results. Must be I'm doing things right or I know somebody. Turn to Hello Again on page 6. Let's have a tug-of-war or at least enjoy a friendly joust or contest.

Preach the word; be prepared in season and out of season; correct, rebuke and encourage—with great patience and careful instruction. ~ 2 Timothy 4:2

Why Buy Local?

Support yourself

When you buy from an independent, locally owned business, significantly more of your money is used to make purchases from other local businesses, service providers and farms -- continuing to strengthen the economic base of the community.

Create more good jobs

Small local businesses are the largest employer nationally and in our community, provide the most jobs to residents.

Get better service

Local businesses often hire people with a better understanding of the products they are selling and take more time to get to know customers.

Invest in community

Local businesses are owned by people who live in this community, are less likely to leave, and are more invested in the community's future.

Put your taxes to good use

Local businesses in town centers require comparatively little infrastructure investment and make more efficient use of public services.

Hello Again,

Did you ever wake too early in the morning with a crazy thought which would not let you get back to sleep?

Well that happened to me in the wee hours of last night. Our national main leader is President Obama. I wondered, did this leader of the most powerful nation on the face of the earth ever hold down a regular job, working for a commercial employer and not one that was government funded? I wondered at what age did Mr. Obama receive a social security card?

Then my restless mind flipped over to our governor and I wondered — prior to law school and law practice, did he ever hold down an ordinary job? You know what I mean — a job where you worked for someone or a company for eight hours a day, 40 hours per week, and received a paycheck, or even cash, as payment for your labor.

I imagine that line of thinking and 10 cents won't buy you a cup of coffee. To continue with this strange thinking, both men — our president and our governor — are advocates of a higher minimum wage law. How could either one of them have the foggiest idea what it would mean? For one thing, many employed with a minimum wage — such as high school and college students — will actually lose their job. Now — how will that help them? If I needed my job, I wouldn't vote for either of them. How about you? Can you imagine anyone paying a 14 year old boy or girl, $10 per hour for 40 hours plus 20 percent more going to the government which would total $480 weekly?

Will it not just add to the cost of our agricultural and manufactured goods and products which now cannot compete in the world market? If we continue to raise our salaries and raise the cost of our goods, why in the realm of sane thinking would anyone or country buy from us when they can pay less elsewhere?

It appears we cannot at the present compete in the world marketplace as our products just plain cost too much. The Republican Party is trying its best to cut down on our country's spending and the daily newspapers and T.V. news programs are calling them radicals and worse.

Now let's get blunt. When your home expenses become greater than your income, do you keep on spending and spending with no regard to the eventual outcome? Well, I guess some do — that's why they lose their credit rating, homes, cars and end up in bankruptcy.

I trust you understand — this is not simply a political republican against democrat issue. It is a choice. Are we going to let our leaders drive this greatest of all countries down the road to financial destruction so one side or the other can say they won? We must — we have to stop spending. The republicans claim the Obama Healthcare program is the greatest financial mistake our country could ever make — just think — what if they are right? If you are a democrat or a republican — it will not matter — we will sink into destruction together.

Messrs Obama, and Cuomo — sit up straight and pay attention. This is the people who voted for you speaking. We — you — cannot keep on overspending and giving U.S. money away to other nations and raising wages and not wipe the U.S. economy clear off the map. We didn't attend or graduate from Harvard or Yale. We are tough-minded students/occupants out of the school of hard knocks. Experience has taught us, and not some philosophy professor, that we cannot constantly raise prices and wages and give billions of dollars to other countries without going belly up. In the daily newspapers this week it was reported that we, the people of the United States, are giving to Egypt over 1.5 billion dollars. Stop being a political party power and become a country-loving American.

Our little dog, Toby, was looking over this paper and asked, “How come no dog pictures or stories? Are we not ‘Man’s Best Friend?’” This promoted the idea of a “What am I thinking?” pet contest.

Ok, I did the trick, now where is my treat?

As an example, refer to the caption line under Toby’s picture. You can enter the “What am I thinking?” pet contest by writing your caption and mailing your entry to Toby at Lee Publications, PO Box 121, Palatine Bridge, NY 13428.

The winner of this “What am I thinking?” pet contest will receive a check for $50 and the winning entry will be published. Your cut line message can be cute, not so cute, or even a few line poem. If there is a tie, your entry will go in the hat and with luck, you will win the $50.

What can a jack-ass, mule, or horse have in common? It’s owner.

While traveling by car back to the farm, Farmer Jones and his wife had a fight and didn’t speak for a couple of hours. Finally Farmer Jones pointed to a group of mules along the road. “Relatives of yours?” he asked. “Yes,” she snapped, “all of them by marriage.”

The pastor of a country church asked a young people’s group, “What is wrong with polygamy – marriage with several wives?” The old janitor overheard the question and said, “Too many in-laws.”

Two evenings ago I saw a huge gaggle-flock-skein of geese traveling southeast through our Mohawk Valley. Sometimes we have so much natural beauty it’s hard to decide what to look at first.

Huge piles of logs and split wood can be seen along our country roads. One home has a real long stack of split wood on the west side of their home and driveway, large storage stack as a wind block. Now that’s real “Yankysm.”

Someone suggested I put skis on the little red bike for winter. I wonder – how would they work in Florida? Keep on waving when you see “Little Red.” He loves it, and it will give you a chance to get your hands out of your pockets.

Spring and summer are gone. It’s fall, and soon it will be winter. Nearly everything in life changes. Now I have gray hair. However, God’s love for his creation — the Heavens and Earth and you and I — doesn’t change. All he asks from us is to love him and appreciate his creations, both nature and mankind.

TO THE VOTERS OF THE TOWN OF PALATINE

My name is Paul Spencer and I am running as a write-in candidate for councilman in the Town of Palatine.

Sixty years ago, my parents moved their family to Palatine to engage in the business of Dairy Farming. After college and my enlistment in the U.S. Navy, I found myself returning HOME to the Town of Palatine to pursue the life-long dream of owning and operating my own dairy farm. That dream became a reality in 1967, when I purchased the farm where I still live today with my wife, Linda.

If elected, my goals as councilman are to:

- Keep township residents informed
- Have your town government more open to the people
- Look for cost cutting measures
- Look for ways to keep taxes from increasing

I would like to thank the residents who attended the first-ever Meet the Candidates night for the Town of Palatine. It was an interesting and informative meeting. I would also like to thank the candidates who attended and Michele Whiteman for serving as moderator.

Remember to come out and vote on Tuesday, November 5th, 2013. This is your town and your vote DOES count.

Good news for leaf peepers

Karl Niklas, Cornell University professor of plant biology whose research focuses on the relationship between plants and the physical environment, predicts the 2013 fall season will be filled with beautiful, vibrant colors.

Niklas says:

“Autumn coloration will be average to better than average this year. Leaf coloration depends on temperature and rainfall, but it also depends on the health of a forest. Overall, we had a reasonable amount of rainfall, about average temperatures and forest health appears normal as well. The autumnal coloration will commence at higher elevations in the Northeastern parts of the state. Cooler weather will arrive at these higher elevations, which have more well-drained soil. As a consequence of the confluence of drier soils and lower temperatures, the plants will respond by going into dormancy sooner, which for deciduous species entails drawing nutrients from leaves that in turn results in coloration of leaves.”

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Whatchamacallits

Last month, The Pennysaver submitted this Whatchamacallit to you for identification. We are pleased to announce that the mystery has been solved. Bob Roger from Staunton, VA provided us with the official U.S. patent.

It is titled "A Poultry-Killing Device" and is used in the butchering process. Where most people assume chickens were butchered by the snap of the neck, this instrument actually pierced the skull, which rested in the cup so the proper arteries could be more efficiently severed.

The item was invented in Saskatchewan, Canada in 1932.

Whatchamacallit? Send picture and description to eenger@leepub.com.

Visit our Facebook page each week to see if you can figure out what the upcoming Whatchamacallit is!

Ruby and Quiri ~ not just another pretty face

by Elizabeth A. Tomlin

Folks may have noticed renovations taking place at Ruby & Quiri, located at the former Baronet Litho building at 307 N. Comrie Ave., in Johnstown.

"To celebrate our 64th year in business, Ruby & Quiri has completely remodeled our storefront," reports Advertising Coordinator Michael Porter.

Porter says that although the façade now has a more contemporary, stylish look, some of the original characteristics have been retained. "We've also kept some elements intact as a salute to the original Baronet Litho multi-colored façade, which has been a fixture in our community for decades."

The new façade is a reflection of the work that has also been completed on the inside of the building. "We've added about 5,000 square feet," Porter says. "Ruby & Quiri has expanded their store to feature a brand new Appliance and Electronics showroom, as well as our state of the art Sleep Center. We have the finest and most complete selection of home furnishings in the Capital Region."

The store carries a complete selection of bedding, furniture, flooring — including tiles and carpeting, lighting, appliances, electronics — and all major brand names.

"From planning one room to an entire home, we have whatever you're looking for. Really, we're five stores in one!"

With nearly 50 employees, including a large, personal, customer service team and designing center, customers are treated with benefits at Ruby & Quiri, with "service that exceeds expectations."

Porter says that providing customers with exceptional service is something that every member of the team practices. "We focus on having the most knowledgeable and caring employees."

Porter emphasizes that Ruby & Quiri offers merchandise at low, competitive prices and carries a storewide supply of close out specials.

"We are constantly measuring and improving our performance and selling at national chain store prices."

Ruby & Quiri also services all of the products they sell and delivery is available. "We have made deliveries as far away as New York City and Connecticut."

The store is handicap accessible with Rollator walkers and lightweight wheelchairs available for entire family shopping convenience.

"You will find both service and low prices at Ruby & Quiri!" says Porter. "We're also proud to announce 'The Boutique at R&Q' coming soon!"

Ruby & Quiri, a family-owned business since 1949, may be reached at 518-762-7829.

Ruby & Quiri's Master Electrician Jack Davin installs a lighting fixture as the finishing touch in the store's main entryway.

Customer service and warehouse team members include Amber Cromer, Advertising Coordinator Michael Porter, Don Peeler and Marie Horning.

Is someone "liening" on your car?

(NAPSA) — When buying a used car make sure any unpaid liens have been resolved before buying the car. A lien is "a legal right to the vehicle by a third party to ensure the repayment of a debt or other financial obligation."

If you buy a vehicle with a lien on its title, you become legally obligated to pay off the debts. The lien also prevents you from registering the car until the lien is paid off. Visit www.carfax.com to get a Carfax Report and learn more.

Cleaning garden tools

by Dr. Leonard Perry, Extension Professor, University of Vermont

Cleaning your garden tools regularly after use is ideal, but at the least they should be cleaned before putting them away for winter. Clean tools work more effectively, so are easier to use, and they last longer.

Keeping blades sharp improves cutting, which is easier on you and the plants. Keeping tools used in soil cleaned keeps their edges sharper too, preventing rust from forming, and removes possible disease-laden soil particles.

Cleaning tools even more often when working on infected plants is essential to prevent disease spread. If pruning diseased limbs from trees, keep a container of rubbing alcohol, bleach (one part to 9 parts water), or disinfectant (such as Lysol) handy to dip blades in between pruning each plant to avoid spreading disease.

For tools such as shovels, hoes and garden forks that are used in soil, wash them after use with a forceful stream of water from the hose. For stubborn soils such as clay, use a wire-bristle brush or dull implement if needed. Then dry tools with a rag. For blades of saws and pruners that end up with sticky plant sap, such as from evergreens (pines, spruces and the like), use some paint thinner to remove the sap before wiping with a rag.

Even after cleaning, the worn metal can rust, even more so if higher grade steel. To prevent this, wipe tools or spray with a very light coat of motor oil. Some dilute this with kerosene, two parts oil to one of kerosene. Others recycle their old oil from mowers for this use. You can wipe the oil on with an old rag or paper towel, spray it on with a hand sprayer, or make a mix of the soil with sand to push tools into after each use. The latter is easy, quick, and the sand helps provide some abrasion to remove soil in the process. The oil breaks down rapidly in the soil, and little is used, so you shouldn't have any negative soil effects.

For hand tools, some use a strong black tea. Brew up enough in a pan or kettle to cover the tools, then let them, or blades at least, soak for a few hours after the tea is cooled. Rust should wipe off easily with a rag. If tools aren't very dirty or rusty, a balled up handful of wax paper rubbed over surfaces may be sufficient — both cleaning and leaving some protective wax on them.

If tools have gotten severely rusted, you may need to use rough sandpaper, and even perhaps a wire bristle brush. For the most rusted, you may need to use a drill with wire brush attachment. For the latter in particular, make sure to wear safety glasses. Then make sure to wipe and coat with oil.

Sharpen tools too, at least at the end of the season. Best is to sharpen them regularly as used during the season. This is more important if tools have rusted. For dull large tools such as shovels, axes, and spades, you can use a hand file available from hardware or home stores. If very dull, you may need a high speed grinding stone or drill attachment. As with cleaning, make sure to wear eye protection if using a high-speed grinder.

Many tools now have plastic handles, but if you have one with wood, treat it as well for longest life. Rub wooden handles with a rag, slightly moistened with linseed oil or other wood protection oil product.

Once tools are cleaned and sharpened, store them properly in a closet, garage, or shed out of the weather. Keeping them off the floor helps prevent any moisture and rust, and dulling. I like to hang mine by the handles. If straight handles, I hang upside down with ten-penny nails used to hold the tool itself. When buying new tools consider stainless steel ones, if available, that are easier to keep clean.

From Tesla to Volvo: New car models in 2014

by Dee-Ann Durbin and Tom Krisher, AP Auto Writers

DETROIT (AP)

Tesla

Model X: Electric car maker Tesla currently makes just one sedan, the Model S. Its next vehicle, the Model X crossover, is expected to go on sale toward the end of 2014. A preproduction version shown at the Detroit auto show last January had seven seats and unique gull-wing doors that open vertically instead of sliding to the side. Like the Model S, the Model X will have a choice of batteries — 60 kWh or 85 kWh — and a large touchscreen dashboard. The Model X will also have an all-wheel-drive option, something the Model S doesn't have right now.

Toyota

Corolla: The 11th generation of the Corolla — one of the best-selling small cars on the planet — goes on sale in September. Toyota took a risk with an edgier, more chiseled design, and LED headlights give the car a more premium look. The car is nearly 4 inches longer, which makes the interior roomier, especially for the rear passengers. Toyota also added more carpet insulation and other materials to make the cabin quieter. There are two four-cylinder engine choices: a 1.8-liter with 132 horsepower, which is carried over from the previous generation, and the 1.8-liter with Toyota's Valvematic technology, which slightly improves fuel economy and horsepower by offering a broader range of valve timing. There's a four-speed automatic transmission in base models, but Toyota expects most buyers will opt for its new six-speed continuously variable transmission. Toyota estimates the Corolla gets 37 mpg on the highway and 29 mpg in the city. An Eco version gets 40 mpg on the highway with the help of aerodynamic improvements, low rolling resistance tires, a spoiler and the Valvematic engine.

4Runner: The redesigned 2014 4Runner has a distinctive, architectural front grille and a standard roof rack on all trim levels. Inside, there's more second-row leg room thanks to sculpted front seats, and lower trim levels get nicer features like a leather-wrapped steering wheel and shifter. The 4.0-liter, 270-horsepower V6 remains, and gets 17 mpg in the city and 22 on the highway for the 4x4 or 23 for the 4x2.

Highlander: Toyota hasn't yet released details on the new Highlander SUV, which will go on sale early in 2014. A hybrid version will hit the market in the spring.

Tundra: The 2014 Tundra full-size pickup truck gets a complete makeover, with a bigger, bolder grille up front, improved suspension below and an integrated spoiler in the rear to improve fuel economy. A backup camera is standard on all trim levels, a first for the full-size pickup segment. On the inside, Toyota has made ergonomic improvements, including installing more comfortable front seats that move back farther, and reduced wind noise. There's a new top-of-the-line model, the 1794 Edition, which pays homage to the San Antonio ranch, founded in 1794, where Toyota's plant is now located. It has a western theme, with saddle brown leather seats, suede accents, and premium features like heated and cooled seats and navigation. The engine choices a 4.0-liter, 270 horsepower V6; 4.6-liter, 310-horsepower V8; and a 5.7-liter, 381-horsepower V8 — are carried over from the previous model, which got up to 17 mpg in city and highway driving.

Volkswagen

Beetle: Sometime during the model year, the base 2.5-liter five-cylinder engine will be replaced by a 170-horsepower, 1.8-liter turbocharged four to increase gas mileage by 17 percent. Current five-cylinder Beetle gets 31 mpg on highway. New GSR retro racer line is added, and Beetle Turbo becomes the R-Line.

Jetta: VW's top seller gets the new 1.8-liter turbocharged and a direct-injection four-cylinder engine to replace the 2.5-liter five-cylinder. New engine gets 36 mpg on highway. A 30th anniversary

GLI performance model comes late in the model year.

Passat: The midsize VW gets the same 1.8-liter turbocharged engine to replace the five cylinder.

Volvo

XC60: The XC60 small SUV gets its most extensive refresh since it was introduced four years ago. A new hood and grille give the vehicle a wider, more confident stance. Inside, Volvo now offers sporty paddle shifters mounted on the steering wheel, which let drivers shift without taking their hands off the wheel. The interior also has upgraded materials and a high-tech instrument cluster. Corner traction control, which helps the vehicle on wet or winding streets, is now standard. Also standard are a new blind spot monitoring system and cross-traffic alert, a radar system that warns the driver if vehicles are approaching the rear sides. An optional technology package offers active high beams, which automatically switch to low beams if oncoming traffic is detected, and a system that automatically brakes if the car is about to hit a pedestrian or cyclist. The three engines remain, including a 3.2-liter V6 with 240 horsepower, a 3.0-liter turbocharged V6 with 300 horsepower and a top-of-the-line 3.0-liter turbocharged V6 with 325 horsepower. The base engine gets up to 25 mpg on the highway.

Seasonal driving checklist

(NAPSA) — Whether drivers are trading out their ice scrapers for an open sunroof or putting the cover on the convertible after another summer driving season, experts advise that seasonal car prep should go beyond the basic wash and wax.

With that in mind, consider these car care tips for keeping your vehicle looking and running in tip-top shape.

Check tire tread depth. To check tread depth, look inside the grooves on the tire. At every six to 10 inches, a raised wear bar will appear, and if the tread is worn to the same height as the bar, it's time to replace the tire. Make sure to check for wear at several spots on each tire, as wear may not always be even. If new tires are needed, be sure to follow your vehicle manufacturer's recommendation for size and type of tires, as the wrong tire can hurt vehicle handling.

Verify battery strength. Don't assume all is well with the car battery just because your vehicle starts. While some drivers may be able to check their own battery, this is usually best left to the professionals.

Regularly monitor tire pressure. Underinflated tires reduce fuel mileage and optimal handling, and can suffer unnoticeable damage that compromises car performance and safety. Check tire pressure often; don't just "set it and forget it."

Pay attention to brake operation. Properly functioning brakes are essential to vehicle safety. Disc brakes on modern vehicles are exposed to road salt, dirt and moisture, which together can create problems. Pay attention when braking. Does your vehicle stop evenly or does it seem to pull to one side? This can indicate a malfunction if it occurs on a variety of road surfaces and should be checked immediately. What about noise? While an occasional noise is not uncommon, unusually loud or constant noises when applying the brakes should be checked by a professional.

Inspect/replace wiper blades. The joys of a leisurely drive through changing scenery can be quickly erased by a freak thunderstorm, especially if that's when you discover you need new wiper blades. The rubber used in wiper blades can become dry and brittle during the hotter months, especially if they've already been through a season of snow and rain. Replace them early to ensure a clear view of the road ahead.

Essentially, explains Tim Quinn, vice president, AfterSales, Porsche Cars North America, Inc., a new season is "the perfect time to review critical car safety functions."

Don't let your car become a money pit

October is Fall Car Care Month, the perfect time to be car care aware and take preventative maintenance steps so your vehicle doesn't become a money pit later, says the Car Care Council.

"If you're like most Americans, you're busier than ever and you may not think twice Council's website provides a wealth of auto care information, including a free personalized service schedule, tips for going green and videos to get started on do-it-yourself car care.

"Whether you visit a professional service technician or do it yourself, starting a preventative maintenance program with a thorough vehicle inspection this fall can help keep your car safe and dependable for the harsh winter months ahead," said White.

The Car Care Council is the source of information for the "Be Car Care Aware" con-maintenance and repair to consumers. For a copy of the council's Car Care Guide or for more information, visit www.car-care.org.

Be Car Care Aware

about putting off vehicle maintenance. However, neglected auto care almost always means much higher costs down the road in the form of more extensive repairs or lost resale value," said Rich White, executive director, Car Care Council. "Following a routine maintenance schedule like the one found on the Car Care Council's website can help you drive smart, save money and make informed decisions."

Created to help car owners take a proactive role in maintaining their vehicles, the Car Care
