Why Buy Local?

Support yourself

When you buy from an independent, locally owned business, significantly more of your money is used to make purchases from other local businesses, service providers and farms -- continuing to strengthen the economic base of the community.

Create more good jobs

Small local businesses are the largest employer nationally and in our community, provide the most jobs to residents.

Get better service

Local businesses often hire people with a better understanding of the products they are selling and take more time to get to know customers.

Invest in community

Local businesses are owned by people who live in this community, are less likely to leave, and are more invested in the community's future.

Put your taxes to good use

Local businesses in town centers require comparatively little infrastructure investment and make more efficient use of public services.

May 31, 2014

Hello Again.

Do you enjoy going to a diner for breakfast? I imagine your wife will vote yes. I only have to make that suggestion once and my wife is reaching for her hat.

This morning a threesome at the table next to us was enjoying a story about a donkey and some deer. My faithful hearing aids could not pick up the gist of the donkey story. A few minutes later they were discussing education. Again, not being able to hear everything they were chatting about, I put two and two together and figured they must be talking about the donkeys in our state education department. I hesitate trying to be so politically correct, as I wanted to use the biblical word for donkey.

The author of Hello Again is attempting to encourage a local lady to try her hand at writing short stories. Maybe a little chatter about the donkey and his friends the deer will be her first.

Stop and reason with me. Should it take 13 years of public school education to prepare our young to graduate from high school? Yes or no? After 13 years they have not been trained or taught how to make a living in any field. The teaching profession is one of the most noble professions. Teachers are not at fault. The state-mandated education program is. To make matters worse, they go on to college to end up with 17 years of general education and cannot even apply for a job — any job — as a trained or even semi-trained individual.

European countries trade schools seem to make so much more sense. The students receive a well-balanced formal literary education equal to ours and graduate as a trained trade student.

The secretary of education, with headquarters in Albany, and two staff members were circling the Mohawk Valley in an airplane. They were hatching a scheme to raise school taxes. One of the staff members scribbled a note, and attached a $100 bill. The note said, "To help with your school taxes," she said. "I'm going to drop this out of the window. It will make someone happy." The secretary said, "Wait, I have two 50-dollar bills. Use these instead. It will make two people happy." The pilot, listening carefully, said, "Why don't all three of you jump out and make everyone happy?"

My wife's sister and her husband live in Texas. I swear they honestly believe that on Dec. 29, 1845, Texas agreed to annex the United States. In other words, we nearly became part of Texas.

They claim that a Texas rancher-oil man was listening to a gal bragging about her home state of Kentucky. She said, "We have enough gold in Fort Knox to build a fence around Texas."

"Well go ahead and build it," the Texan said. "If I like it, I'll buy it for my wife."

In our church on Sunday, one of the men was asked to pray prior to the offering. He talked so quietly I could not hear. Then I remember the story of a young boy who was praying while kneeling beside his bed. His mother said, "I cannot hear you," and the boy replied, "I was not talking to you."

During the offering, an usher handed me a big plate full of money. I said, "No thanks, I have enough this week."

A friend, while being examined by a doctor, was told, "I'm sorry but I can only give you about three months to live," so he told the doctor that he was not going to pay his bill.

"What did he say then?"

"He gave me three more months."

If you're not following World News, that is understandable. And if you're not in favor of globalization leading to a one-world government, you must be an American. God bless America and her Americans.

It has been said that our president and many, if not most, of our senators are in favor of globalization. I'm sure you remember that 28 European nations joined together to form the European Union. They basically dropped their borders, canceled their country's currencies, and joined in a common currency, the euro. It is important to realize that a growing number of euro-skeptics, after the recent European election, are celebrating their success at gaining back almost 30 percent of the EU 751 seat legislature. Their growing dream is to reestablish their old borders, drop the euro currency and once again have their own currency, gaining back self-government, and their own country.

They are dreaming, planning and trying to establish their own country government which seems to be exactly opposite of what many of our federal and possibly state government leaders are in favor of — with our country becoming only part of the planned one-world government.

You say this is hogwash and cannot happen. It is more than heading in that direction. Right now, be aware your children may not be citizens of the United States, but will be forced to pledge their allegiance to a new one-world and not our "country-government."

In church last Sunday we were admonished to listen — read and watch what is happening around us as it pertains to the Christian faith as set forth in the Holy Bible. Our faith holds to the truth of the Bible and we should judge all claims to another faith by what the Bible teaches.

Hello Again encourages its readers to judge all proposed government changes on the original interpretation of the U.S. Constitution and the Holy Bible.

Let's not fall to the claims of today's government prophets, which claim we must change. Rather, let's shoulder to shoulder defend our great nation.

It's been great for the past few days, out riding on the little red Spyder motorcycle. Everywhere we go, I see happy American hands waving and often hear car horns tootin'.

Memorial Day was a true American celebration with beautiful parades, stars and stripes leading the way. Please — always remember God gave us this country and populated it with God-believing Christian people and "the beautiful, land of the free" became the most powerful freedom — God-loving nation on this Earth. Let's fight to not change. Europe is fighting to get back what it lost.

Wave Hello Again when you see the little red bike and join with your family in church this Sunday.

Whatchamacallits

What do earthworms, crickets and grubs have in common? They all might have spent a little time in one of these bait boxes before finding themselves on a fisherman's hook.

These tin containers feature hinged covers and have holes on the top in order to provide ventilation for live bait. The largest box pictured in this photo was produced by the Horrocks-Ibbotson Company, which operated a factory in Utica, NY. The factory opened in 1905.

There is an elongated diamond inside the box's trout decal that was used on the company's top-notch fishing rods until 1933. Some bait boxes include clips on the back so the container could be fastened to a fisherman's belt for ease of use.

St. Johnsville water declared a winner

by Elizabeth A. Tomlin

The village of St. Johnsville has received the honor and distinction of receiving an award for having the best tasting water in Montgomery County.

“Each year we contact all seven of the municipal water plants in early April to arrange for an annual taste test,” said Toni Christman, Montgomery County Soil and Water Conservation District Clerk/Treasurer.

Municipalities included in the water quality tasting contest are Amsterdam, Canajoharie, Fonda, Fultonville, Palatine Bridge, St. Johnsville and Fort Plain.

Christman said that Stewart’s Shops donate gallon containers for the water tasting contest and she personally visits each facility to obtain the samples.

All samples are refrigerated for 24 hours, so the water is all the same temperature.

Customers who picked up orders from the annual tree sale on April 25 and 26 tasted the samples and voted for the best tasting water.

When the tallies were in this year, St. Johnsville had won the vote.

St. Johnsville village Water Superintendent Bill Viccorelli, Mayor Bernard Barnes, and village trustees Gene Colorito and Margaret DiGiacomo were on hand to proudly accept the award.

Christman said the regional vote would take place in June and that Eric Yeung Tam of the New York State Rural Water Contest will contact Viccorelli with more information about the Regional Taste Off.

“The first and second place winner from the Regional Taste Off will go to the New York State Fair for the State Taste Off,” Christman stated.

Christman said that St. Johnsville has won the State Taste Off contest previously.

“I believe it was 2008 when St. Johnsville won.”

“The whole team from the water department gets credit for this,” commented Mayor Bernard Barnes. “It’s a whole team effort!”

“We do this for the taxpayers!” Barnes added.

Montgomery County Farm Bureau Promotion and Education Committee donates to local food pantry

by Elizabeth A. Tomlin

"It's food donations like these that make it possible to serve as many people as we do," stated Fulmont Community Action Outreach Center Coordinator Aimee Kollar. "I never have to turn anyone away."

Kollar was speaking about the generous donation made to the Fulton Montgomery Food Pantry by ladies representing the Montgomery County Farm Bureau Promotion and Education committee.

A variety of cereal, soup, canned vegetables, canned fruits and juices were some of the assorted non-perishable items purchased by Montgomery County Farm Bureau's Promotion and Education Committee members Mary Finch, Grace Downes and Marge DeBlock.

"This year we're making a donation of non-perishable food to the local Fulmont Food Pantry in recognition of Food Check-Out Week," said Finch. "But other years we've made donations to the Ronald McDonald House in Albany and to other charities."

The Farm Bureau and Ronald McDonald House Charities connection was initiated when Food Check-Out Week first began and county and state Farm Bureaus still continue to make food donations to the Ronald McDonald Houses and other charities during Food Check-Out Week. This event also highlights the origins of the American food supply — with a focus on farmers.

Montgomery County Farm Bureau's Promotion and Education Committee emphasizes that New York farmers are committed to producing safe, abundant and healthy food and that they are helping consumers find solutions to eating healthy on a straining budget.

"The donations from Farm Bureau are very much appreciated!" said Kollar. "They're wonderful!"

The ladies of the Montgomery County Farm Bureau Promotion and Education committee also donate a basket of food and baby items to the family of the first baby born on Thanksgiving Day each year.

"Most organizations donate to the first baby born on New Year's Day," said Finch with a smile. "But, we want to be different!"

Now here's a tip

by JoAnn Derson

• Keep garlic cloves in the freezer. You can take them out individually when you need them and they thaw quickly.

• Couponer secret: "Keep clipped coupons in a binder sorted by type of item. When the sales circulars are available, scan your coupons to see what matches you can make. If you buy multiples, you can put them away in your pantry and won't have to purchase items when you're low — you can wait until you see another coupon and sale matchup!" — L.S. in Florida

• "Use an over-the-door shoe holder to house your makeup and hair accessories, plus jewelry and other personal items. You can trim a curtain or piece of fabric to fit over the length of it, and tie it to the top if it looks too messy in your room." -- M.K. in North Carolina

• Use this trick to freshen your stuffed animals. Dust with baking soda and put several together in a large paper grocery bag, until it's half full.

Fold the top of the bag down and shake vigorously. Remove the stuffed friends and shake off any excess baking soda. For good measure, put in a low- or no-heat dryer cycle for 10-15 minutes.

Keep cool while saving money

(BPT) — There are simple things you can do throughout your home to keep cool while saving money.

Maintain your cooling system. Change your HVAC filter regularly, as a dirty filter can restrict airflow and increase energy usage.

Even small household changes can make a difference. Replace incandescent light bulbs with compact fluorescent bulbs that use less energy and generate less heat.

With these simple tips, you can keep your cool this summer as the temperatures go up — and your costs go down.

Did You Know???

The sun is actually a star! It is made up of different gases, mostly hydrogen and helium. Its temperature is approximately 10,000 degrees Fahrenheit. About one million Earths could fit inside of the sun!

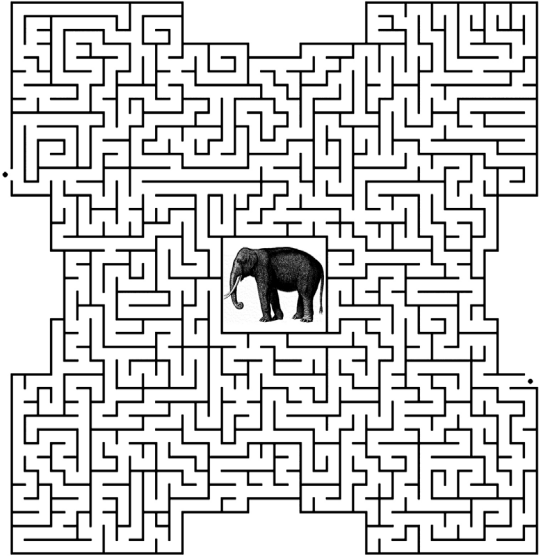

Rays of sunlight travel for approximately 8 minutes before they can be seen on Earth!

Sometimes the moon moves between the sun and the earth, blocking the sun's light. This is called an eclipse.

Automotive and Car Care

Is your car road ready for summer?

The Car Care Council recommends the following pre-trip checklist before hitting the road this summer:

- Check the brake system and make sure the battery connection is clean, tight and corrosion-free.
- Check the tires, including tire pressure and tread. Underinflated tires reduce a vehicle's fuel economy and uneven wear indicates a need for wheel alignment. Tires should also be checked for bulges and bald spots.

Get 'tick'ed-off during Lyme Disease Awareness Month

Experts offer tips and safety measures for protection from ticks and disease

In observance of National Lyme Disease Awareness Month, RISE (Responsible Industry for a Sound Environment)® wants to protect families from tick bites that can transmit Lyme disease, and empower homeowners to be their own "Backyard Boss," reducing outdoor risks that attract unwanted pests like ticks.

Recent research by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) estimates about 300,000 people are diagnosed with Lyme disease annually. The disease is also known as "The Great Imitator," as it shows symptoms that mimic many other diseases, making it difficult to diagnose. This means the number of U.S. cases each year could be significantly higher.

According to Phyllis Mervine, founder and president of LymeDisease.org, awareness and prevention are two key components in combating Lyme disease.

"As a disease that leaves those affected with a lower quality of life, increased susceptibility for doctor visits, and at times the inability to work or take part in everyday activities, families should be motivated to learn what to look for and how to prevent exposure so their families and children are able to enjoy the outdoors safely," said Mervine.

In fact, a recent LymeDisease.org survey — the largest ever conducted on people with Lyme disease — reported more than 40 percent of patients with chronic Lyme disease are currently unable to work and 24 percent have received disability at some point during their illness.

To help prevent exposure and manage ticks this summer, RISE created the following checklist:

1. Avoid wooded and busy areas with high grass and leaf litter.
2. Apply repellent before participating in outdoor activities.
3. Bathe or shower right after spending time outdoors and conduct a full-body tick check using a mirror to see hard to reach places such as the under arms, belly button, behind the knees and on the scalp.
4. Place a barrier of wood chips or gravel between your lawn, patio, and play equipment and any wooded areas. This will restrict tick migration into recreational areas.

5. Check pets for ticks daily and remove them as soon as possible if one is present. Pets can carry ticks inside homes as they hide in their fur.

6. Protect pets by reaching out to your local veterinarian. They usually offer a variety of products for protecting animals from tick-borne diseases.

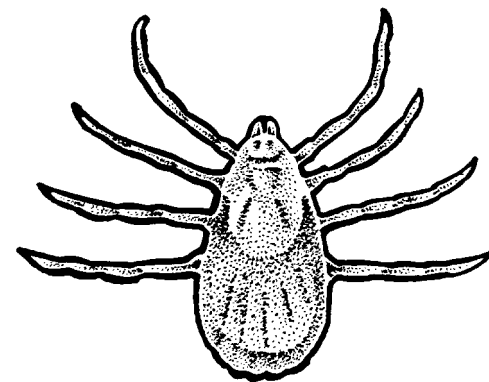

7. Consult a licensed and trained green industry professional to spray the yard's perimeter to reduce tick populations.

"Additional ways to protect loved ones from tick exposure on your property may include pruning trees, clearing brush, removing litter and mowing grass short and letting it dry thoroughly between waterings," added Mervine.

Due to warmer weather and school vacations, May also brings increased outdoor activity and more exposure to harmful pests. Become a "Backyard Boss" by incorporating an integrated pest management (IPM) approach to manage common, harmful pests through maintenance, monitoring of pest populations, sanitation and pesticides. IPM empowers homeowners and lawn care enthusiasts to reduce the likelihood of unwanted pests, weeds and disease — like Lyme disease — and keep their family and pets healthy and safe.

Learn more about how to prevent pests inside and outside your home by visiting www.DebugTheMyths.com and join the conversation on Facebook and Twitter.

Is a pet right for your family?

Pets often make wonderful additions to a household. Parents not only love pets because animals bring smiles to their children's faces, but also because pets teach kids about responsibility.

But the decision of whether or not to bring a pet into a home is a complicated one that parents would be wise to give ample consideration before making their final decision. The following are a few factors parents can consider when deciding if now is the right time to bring a pet into their household.

Finances

Money is often overlooked when deciding whether or not to bring a pet into a home. But pets can be expensive, and the potential cost of pet ownership must be fully explored. Pet adoption fees are often negligible, but families who prefer a purebred dog can expect to spend considerably more money than they would if they were to adopt a mixed breed dog from the local shelter. In addition, a pedigreed cat is likely to cost more than a cat adopted from the shelter. But those initial fees are only a small part of the expenses associated with pet ownership. Medical costs, including routine veterinary visits and medication, pet insurance, food, and grooming costs can add up over time, so families already working on thin budgets might find it's not financially prudent to bring a pet into their home until their finances stabilize.

Families who tend to travel a lot also must consider the cost of sheltering the animal when they are out of town, while renters should determine if bringing a pet into a home will incur a higher rental deposit or if the animal is likely to cause damage, as puppies and kittens tend to do, that will ultimately cost them money when they move out of their rental.

Time

Some pets require more attention than others, so heads of a family should consider just how much time they have to devote to pet ownership. Dogs tend to need the most attention among the more popular household pets, so families whose schedules are already full may find that pets who don't need so much attention fit their for example, tend to be active and energetic, while a typical English bulldog might be more laid-back and less prone to running around. Active families who enjoy spending time outdoors might prefer a more active dog, while families who enjoy relaxing at home might want a dog that's equally comfortable lounging around the house.

When considering cats, families should speak with a professional, be it a veterinarian or a representative at the local animal shelter, about the demeanors of different breeds to ensure they make the best decision. Parents of young children likely want a cat that's playful as opposed to one who is likely to be standoffish with curious kids.

Future

The future is another thing parents must consider before bringing a pet into their home. Par-lifestyle better. For example, cats don't need to go for daily walks and tend to be more independent than canines, making them ideal pets for on-the-go families. When deciding if a pet is right for your family, give heavy consideration to how much time your family spends at home, and if you decide to adopt a pet, choose one that won't be negatively affected by your schedules.

Demeanor

When considering bringing a pet into a home, parents should consider both their own demeanor, their kids' demeanors and the demeanor of the pet they are thinking of adopting. Dogs have their idiosyncrasies, but breeds tend to exhibit similar behaviors. Labrador retrievers, ents whose careers are stable might make better pet owners than those angling for a reassignment or looking to change careers. An unfortunate side effect of the recession that began in 2008 was that many families were forced to relocate when one or both parents lost their jobs but found opportunities elsewhere. Upon moving, these families realized the family pet could not make the trip, which led to shelters being flooded with homeless pets. If your family's future is in question, delay adopting or buying a pet until your situation is more stable. If all is well in your career and your family is firmly entrenched in your community, then now might be a great time to bring a pet into your home.

As we moved into our home we found that the roof needed immediate repair. It was in bad condition and with the winter ahead of us, no time to waste.

We had about eight quotes, one of them was from Swarey Roofing. At our first meeting we were very impressed at how well this company quoted this project.

A lot of possibilities were presented to us with an extreme sense of professional information. We felt very comfortable with Swarey Roofing right from the start. We decided to go for a metal roof. After the appointment was made it took them two days to put a beautiful roof on our home. They not only deliver high quality products but their skills and knowledge are also very recommended. We got a lot of compliments from neighbors. We have received several phone calls from Swarey Roofing after the job was done to ask us how the roof was holding up after some heavy rain had hammered the roof and we were happy to say... perfect!!!! This is obviously a company that cares about their product and customers alike.

If you, your family or friends need a roofing job done, consider Swarey Roofing. I am sure you will be happy with your roof as much as we are.

Thank you for doing such a great job at a very affordable price.

Car lovers: Take care of your four-wheeled family member

(BPT) — Do you view your car or truck as a member of your family? Have you named your vehicle? If so, then consider how caring for your car is similar to caring for your kin. For the most part, caring for your family is pretty straightforward. Watch their diets, keep them clean, fix their bumps and bruises and they are likely to lead a healthy, happy life. So how do you raise and rear your sedan, SUV, light truck or mini-van? Use your parental prowess and follow some basic guidelines.

What to expect when you're ... a car owner

While your human brood does not come with an owner's manual, your car does. Read up on your vehicle. Become familiar with the safety features. Know what all the knobs and buttons do and where to refill things like windshield washer fluid and antifreeze.

Your owner's manual provides recommended maintenance schedules and other important warnings, and, by giving it a quick glance, you can save yourself the frustration of not knowing how to program the radio presets or change the clock for daylight saving time.

Treat the scrapes and scratches

When a child stubs a toe or scrapes a knee, you clean it and treat it to prevent bigger problems. It's the same thing with your car. Your vehicle is bound to see a scratch or two from things like road salt, pebbles and other road hazards. It's better to treat these when they are small so rust and corrosion do not cause further damage. Inspect your car regularly for little dings, then mend them yourself with a DIY product.

Well-car visits

Prevention is the best medicine. That's why you get a yearly checkup. The well-visits monitor your health and prevent illness. You should consider similar checkups for your car.

During a regular vehicle maintenance visit, a car care professional will inspect the battery, brake and cooling systems, engine oil and filter, wheels, tires and more. They will provide guidance on what should be repaired or replaced and when. You may find that a small, less expensive repair made now will prevent a bigger hit to your wallet later and keep your car running longer.

Good food and exercise

After preventive and necessary care, similar to a person, tending to your car comes down to feeding it, cleaning it and making sure it gets enough exercise.

Your vehicle requires fuel to properly run. Some vehicles call for specific grades or types of fuel to operate at an optimal level. Check your vehicle's owner manual for any specific recommendations. Using a fuel different from what's suggested can be the equivalent of feeding a child nothing but junk food. It will run slower and be at risk for future problems.

The elements can be rough on your car. Salt, de-icers and other road treatments can wreak havoc on your vehicle's finish. So give your car a bath every once and a while and be sure to clean the undercarriage whenever possible. And don't forget a good coat of wax to prevent sun damage.

Finally, your family

If you think of your car as a cherished family member, you should take care of it like one.

members need exercise and so does your vehicle. If your car sits idle for too long, engine problems can occur. Take it for a drive. It's good for the vehicle, as well as the driver.

If you think of your car as a cherished family member, you should take care of it like one. Preventive maintenance, like annual checkups, can make a big difference. It's also wise to treat nicks and scratches when they are small and not let them turn into something big. If you approach vehicle care with just a hint of maternal or paternal instincts, your ride will do well for many years to come.

Safety not just drivers' responsibility

Safety should be a top priority for everyone sharing the road, including cyclists, drivers and pedestrians. The following are a few tips each of those groups of travelers can employ to ensure the roads stay safe for everyone.

Cyclists

* Bicyclists must follow the same traffic rules as automobile drivers. Stop for red lights and stop signs, signal lane changes or turns, and drive on the correct side of the road.

* Watch out for parked cars. Oftentimes, drivers exit their vehicles and do not check for oncoming traffic or cyclists. You can be hit by a swinging car door.

* Make yourself as noticeable as possible. This could include using a light or horn on the bike to signal your presence to drivers.

* Always wear a helmet and other applicable safety equipment.

* Maintain your bike so that it is safe to ride.

* Do not carry others on your bike (such as a friend or a child) if it is not designed to do so. Riding on the handlebars or behind the cyclist can be dangerous.

* Avoid the use of ear buds or headphones while cycling. You want all of your senses to be available to avoid accidents.

* Cycle out of the way of drivers' blind spots so you'll be more visible.

* Do not ride your bike on the sidewalk where you could injure pedestrians.

Drivers

* Be aware that you could be sharing the road with pedestrians, cyclists or motorcycle riders.

* Use caution when making turns or at busy intersections -- pedestrians could be crossing.

* Always yield the right of way to pedestrians.

* Pay attention to the road and limit distractions inside the vehicle. This includes keeping the radio tuned low so that you can hear sounds outside of the car.

* Use caution when entering or exiting your parked vehicle.

* Use caution in and around bus stops or other points of mass transit.

* Regularly check the side of the road for pedestrians, especially in areas where there are no sidewalks.

With drivers, pedestrians and bicyclists working in concert, accidents can be reduced.

Pedestrians

* Always use sidewalks and crosswalks when available. If no sidewalk is present, be sure to walk against the direction of traffic.

* Use traffic signals as your guide. However, make sure all traffic has stopped before crossing the road or stepping off of the sidewalk.

* Keep control of pets when walking on a leash, so you're not pulled out into traffic.

* Use caution at bus stops. Many injuries occur from pedestrians running to catch a bus or stepping out into traffic after exiting a bus. Remember, there will be another bus behind the one you're chasing and safety is more important.

* Wear brightly colored or reflective clothing if walking at night.

* Do not cross highways or interstates on foot.

Riders must emphasize safety on the open road

Motorcycle enthusiasts in locales with cold winters may anticipate the warmer weather of spring and summer more than others, as it means they can pull their bikes out of their garages and get back on the open road. While riding a motorcycle can be an exhilarating experience, the U.S. Highway Safety Authority notes that fatal crashes are much more likely to occur to motorcycle riders than automobile drivers. As the number of drivers and riders on the road continues to increase, it has never been more important for riders to practice motorcycle safety.

Be seen and heard

Ever wonder why some motorcycles make so much noise? It's to attract the attention of other motorists. Thanks to their small profiles, motorcycles can easily go unnoticed by motorists. Failure of other motorists to see motorcycles on the road is a chief contributor to collisions involving motorcycles.

One of the more comprehensive studies on motorcycle accidents occurred in 1981. Titled "Motorcycle Accident Cause Factors and Identification of Countermeasures" and published by researcher Harry Hurt with the help of the University of Southern California and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, the study analyzed 3,600 motorcycle traffic accidents in a specific region of California. The findings showed most motorcycle accidents involve a short trip associated with shopping, errands, friends, entertainment, or recreation, and the accident is most likely to occur within close proximity to the rider's home. Accident involvement is significantly reduced by the use of motorcycle headlamps, including during daylight hours, and the wearing of highly visible clothing, including yellow, orange or bright red jackets.

Although this research was conducted some time ago, it still underscores the importance of remaining visible on the road. While leather and denim may be the traditional uniform of motorcycle riding, synthetic materials that have reflective fabrics can improve visibility. Highly visible colors, such as orange and yellow, are good choices when on the road. Riders also can add reflectivity to existing gear with reflective tape.

Many motorcycle riders, particularly those on Harley Davidsons, swap out stock exhaust pipes for ones that emit a louder decibel range. This helps other motorists notice them.

Use the right gear

When a rider is on the open road, he or she doesn't have the protection of a car frame to offer a buffer between the rider and the pavement should an accident occur. That is why it is crucial to invest in quality gear that can offer a certain measure of protection. A high-quality helmet that fits well is an important piece of safety equipment, as head and neck injuries can result in paralysis or fatalities. Pair the helmet with goggles or glasses with safety lenses. Durable nonslip gloves will help riders maintain a good grip on the handlebars, and boots can cover the ankles. Although it can be tempting to forgo long pants or jackets when the weather warms, doing so can lead to painful abrasions and road burn should a fall occur. Invest in a leather jacket and pants or a high-quality, durable and bright-colored material.

Additional safety precautions

According to Allstate(R) Insurance,

46 percent of motorcycle crashes occur at intersections. Knowing this information can help riders make more informed choices on the road. Some other important safety precautions include:

- * Exercise extreme caution at intersections and only go through when safe.
- * Test the lights, brakes and turn signals before you make any trip.
- * Make sure the fuel and oil levels are at the correct levels.
- * Know your bike's limits.
- * Follow the speed limit and the rules of the road, and do not weave in and out of traffic.

* Don't ride in blind spots, staying in spots where you are most visible to fellow motorists.

* Always use turn signals.

* Do not tailgate, as stopping distances for motorcycles, especially on slippery roads, can make stopping difficult.

* Never drink and ride.

Emphasizing motorcycle safety can make for an injury-free riding season.

Clever tips and tricks to save on auto insurance

(BPT) — Car insurance can take a bite out of your budget. On average, consumers shelled out nearly $800 for auto insurance for each vehicle in 2011, according to a recent report from the National Association of Inurance Commissioners. In some states, the annual cost to insure one car topped $1,100.

To cut insurance costs, the first thing to do is talk to your agent. Your agent can tell you about discounts and other painless ways to reduce your premiums, says Charles Valinotti, a senior vice president with insurer QBE North America.

"Insurance companies reward drivers for behaviors that reduce risk," Valinotti says. "But you have to ask your agent which discounts and savings apply to your situation. You may be surprised to learn the number of ways you can lower your premiums."

For example, if one of your teenage drivers earns As and Bs in school, you may be eligible for a good student discount, Valinotti says. You may also be eligible for a discount if your son or daughter attends college more than 100 miles from home, and does not have a car at school.

Other ways to save include:

- Owning two or more cars and covering them on one policy.
- Owning a vehicle that's outfitted with safety equipment like anti-lock brakes, air bags or a security system.
- Having a passive anti-theft device, such as a "smart" chip embedded within a car key.

• Paying the full cost of the premium up front.

• Safe driving. Keep your driving record accident-free for 36 months.

• Buying your auto and homeowners, renters or condominium insurance from the same company.

Whatever you do, don't cut corners with coverage. While it may be tempting, it is best not to buy a policy that offers bare bones coverage. A savvy way to save money would be to increase your deductible, Valinotti advises.

"Rather than buying minimal coverage, think about increasing your potential out-of-pocket cost if you have an accident," Valinotti says. "If you can handle it, raising your deductible can lower your premium without reducing the amount of coverage on your vehicles. Your agent can tell you exactly how much you'll save in premiums by choosing a higher deductible policy."

Don't focus strictly on cost when choosing an insurer. A company that offers auto insurance at rock bottom prices may not be your friend if it takes forever to handle claims. Do your homework on a company's record of claims service before you buy coverage.

Don't be stuck in the heat walking on your feet: how to prep your car for summer driving

(BPT) — It is summer and you can't wait to get out on the road to head to the cabin, on vacation or just a nice carefree ride with the windows down. But while you may be ready to go, is your car? These quick vehicle inspection tips will help you make sure your vehicle is ready for the open road.

Is it cool in here?

Make sure your vehicle is ready to beat the heat by inspecting the air-conditioning (AC) and engine cooling systems. This means removing dirt and debris from the fins of the AC condenser and radiator.

While you're near the radiator, check the coolant level. Look in the owner's manual for the right anti-freeze. A newer car might require a completely different anti-freeze than what was used by that car's brand a few years ago. "Mixing incompatible anti-freezes can instantly gum up the cooling system," says Tom Taylor, engineer and vice president of auto parts retailer RockAuto.com.

Also check the cabin air filter that freshens the air flowing into the interior. This filter typically needs to be replaced annually, but it can clog up much faster if the car is driven on dirt roads or parked under trees. "Owners are so relieved when they discover their AC problems are solved by simply popping a new cabin air filter in place behind the glove box," says Taylor.

Kick the tires

Wherever you plan to go this summer, your tires will take you there;

make sure they're in great shape.

Start by checking the tire pressure. Most tires have a maximum tire pressure printed on the side of the tire, but you want to inflate the tires only to the cold tire pressure printed on the decal inside the driver's door jam. "With today's low-profile tires, the difference between the maximum and cold pressures might be 20 PSI or more. Inflate a cold tire to the maximum pressure printed on the tire and it will be seriously over inflated once it hits the hot pavement," says RockAuto.com's Taylor.

Keep up that strict oil change schedule

If you want your engine to stay cool and last, it's essential that you change the oil at the appropriate times and with the proper oil. With older cars, owners might have used lighter weight oil in the winter and heavier oil in the summer. Today's engines often require the same weight oil year round. "Modern engines use oil as a hydraulic fluid for operating valves and doing other new things. Pour 10W-30 into a new engine that requires 0W-20 and there will likely be problems," says Taylor. Use the weight of oil recommended in the owner's manual and don't forget to change the oil filter too.

Take care of your vehicle and follow these tips and you can be sure it will be there with you for every new mile marker and memory this summer and beyond.

Five tips for relocating the family

Did you know the average person moves 11.4 times in his or her lifetime? So says the most recent information from the U.S. Census Bureau. Various factors prompt people to move, from job opportunities to the desire to be closer to family members to wanting to live in a nicer climate.

Moving is seldom an easy task, and is often ranked among the most stressful events in a person's life. The Employee Relocation Council cites it as the third most stressful event in life, following only death and divorce. That stress is only heightened when an entire family is making the move and an adult is starting a new job simultaneously.

Despite the potential headaches involved with moving, an estimated 43 million Americans move each year. Those moving are often married couples between the ages of 25 and 44 with one or two children between the ages of 2 and 11. To make the process go more smoothly, consider the following tips.

1. Gradually introduce the concept of moving. Moving is a decision to be discussed with the whole family, even with young children who may not fully understand the process. Kids who are involved in looking at new homes or voicing opinions about which amenities they desire in a new neighborhood will feel empowered and in control.

2. Research potential new neighborhoods carefully. Finding a new residence is not entirely about buying a home that fits the family and its needs. It also is about finding a desirable neighborhood and community. A good school district is an important factor, as is proximity to recreation, local culture and transportation. Drive around a neighborhood during different times of the day to gauge how active it is. Investigating businesses in the area can also help gauge the personality of a given neighborhood.

3. Work with an experienced agent. A real estate agent who is familiar with a variety of communities is a great asset. A buyer's agent will find homes and negotiate on the part of the buyer, having your best interests in mind. Because the agent will be paid a commission on a portion of the sale price, which doesn't come out of your pocket, it is in the real estate agent's best interest to help you find a home you can call your own. In addition, the agent will handle many of the tasks that may be overwhelming if you were doing them on your own, such as scouring available listings, waiting for inspections or filling out pertinent paperwork. With a real estate agent handling these tasks, families can remove some of the stress from the moving process.

4. Pack children's rooms last. Young children who see favorite items disappearing into bubble wrapping and boxes may start to feel anxious. It's not uncommon for preschoolers to act out or experience nightmares during the moving process. Maintain a sense of normalcy in the home as long as possible. Begin by packing nonessential items, only packing kids' items when your moving date is right around the corner. Let children say good-bye to familiar haunts and even to their old home.

5. Plan a school orientation. Take advantage of any programs schools offer to acclimate kids to their new environment. Kids often leave friends behind when moving to a new home. The faster they get back to a normal routine, the better it will be for them. Schools are where children will make new friends and participate in social occasions, so tour their new schools before the school year begins, and meet with a few residents and current students to learn about special programs that may make a move less stressful for youngsters.

Relocating a family can be stressful. But involving kids in the process and anticipating an adjustment period can help families adjust more easily.

Do homework before long-distance move

The cost of a long-distance move is a formula based on the mileage to be traveled and the weight of the goods, plus the cost of packing and special services surcharges. Here are some money-saving ideas:

- Before you make the first call to a moving company, de-clutter your home. Consider whether to move or sell items of questionable value. Sell those items at a garage sale to put money in your pocket and keep them out of the moving van.

- Always get estimates from a minimum of three moving companies. There are three types of estimates:

- Non-binding — the movers will give their best estimate of the costs, but you could be required to pay up to 110 percent of that estimate if the shipment is overweight.

- Binding — both you and the mover agree to the price, whether the shipment comes in over or under the estimated weight.

- A Not-To-Exceed estimate guarantees that you'll pay the lower of either the binding estimate or the actual cost.

- Ask the estimator for ideas on reducing expenses and avoiding surcharges. Is it cheaper to move or to replace older appliances, riding mowers and snowmobiles?

- Ask if there is an additional discount (there should be) for allowing the company to temporarily store your belongings until they can be combined on a truck for a more cost-effective trip.

- Handle surcharge items yourself: Disconnect the washer and block the tub, dismantle home entertainment centers and home-office work stations.

- Do your own packing. Used boxes, crumpled newspaper and tape can go a long way toward saving money. If you purchase boxes, hunt for the best deals. For books, compare the cost of having them moved versus mailing them to yourself book rate.

- Be flexible in your moving date. If you can wait until the middle of September, you could save up to 15 percent of your costs.

- Insist on an inventory of the goods to be shipped. This will ensure that the conditions of your belongings are noted before shipment, in the event you have a damage claim.

In summary: Do your homework in advance of a move to save the most money. For more information call American Moving and Storage Association at 703-683-7410 or go online to www.moving.org/.

Driveways to mailboxes: oft-overlooked items that drive curb appeal

(BPT) — Selling or staying, it makes no difference — everyone wants a home that looks great from the curb. Curb appeal comes together when all the elements of a home's facade are in good shape and working together. Driveways that are cracked or pitted with potholes, dingy front doors and other seemingly minor complaints like a shabby, scuffed mailbox, can all significantly detract from a home's overall curb appeal.

Here is a handful of projects — many of them quick fixes — that can greatly enhance a home's appearance.

Repair or resurface your driveway

For many homes, the driveway is one of the largest visual elements of the home's overall curb appeal, ranking right up there with siding, the roof and the lawn. If winter was rough on your driveway, it's time to think of making repairs. Concrete can crack and crumble, and asphalt develops potholes. Both can be repaired quickly and easily.

For any driveway repair, make sure the area to be repaired has been cleaned of debris and loose materials. Cleaning with a hose or pressuring washing can improve the entire surface.

Concrete driveways can develop different types of cracks: very small and shallow resembling a dry river bed; cracks between 1/8 and 1/4 inch wide; and cracks wider and deeper than 1/4 inch. Your choice of repair method will depend on how you want the finished product to look and how much time you have to make the repair.

Repairing damaged asphalt or concrete driveways not only improves its appearance, it can help extend its life, too.

Put the shine on your mailbox

It sits at the end of your driveway and often plays a key role in helping guests find your house. But do you give your mailbox the attention — and the credit — it's due? Little things can mean a lot when it comes to creating curb appeal. While a mailbox that looks good might not get much attention, one that's ugly or shabby is sure to draw the kind of attention you don't want.

If you live in a community that restricts what type of mailbox you can have, simply give your rusted, stained mailbox and the post it sits on a fresh coat of paint in its original color. If your community has no standards for mailboxes, you can swap out an ordinary looking box with something that compliments your exterior design. Does your home have a brick facade? Consider a mailbox set in or on a brick pillar. If your house features fieldstone accents, consider carrying that over to the mailbox with a small, stone-trimmed planting bed at its base.

Lavish your front door with some TLC

The door is the point where your exterior design meets your interior decor. It's also an element that significantly impacts how visitors view your home. Give yours a fresh coat of paint or stain, and don't forget the trim around the door.

Next, consider lighting. Is the area around the door well lit? Good lighting is key not only for safety at night but also to enhance the appeal of the area. Consider sconces beside the door or an attractive overhead fixture if your door has an awning, porch or overhang. Ground lights can accent the effect, either illuminating the pathway that leads to the door or lighting up the door itself.

Finally, take a look at the door hardware. Is the handle or knob looking rusted and shabby? Replacing worn or dated door hardware is an easy, cost-effective way to improve the overall look of your entryway.

Anyone hoping to sell their home during warmer months can greatly enhance curb appeal by investing in these seemingly minor design elements. If you plan to stay in your house, boosting the curb appeal will make you feel even better about coming home every day to a fresh, appealing house.
