Why Buy Local?

Support yourself

When you buy from an independent, locally owned business, significantly more of your money is used to make purchases from other local businesses, service providers and farms -- continuing to strengthen the economic base of the community.

Create more good jobs

Small local businesses are the largest employer nationally and in our community, provide the most jobs to residents.

Get better service

Local businesses often hire people with a better understanding of the products they are selling and take more time to get to know customers.

Invest in community

Local businesses are owned by people who live in this community, are less likely to leave, and are more invested in the community's future.

Put your taxes to good use

Local businesses in town centers require comparatively little infrastructure investment and make more efficient use of public services.

November 8, 2014 Hello Again,

Stretching a statement of almost Irish fact or truth lathering it up with a coating of Irish humor is known as Irish Blarney.

What handle should we use to define most of our American, believe-it-if-you-can facts?

I could suggest baloney — an often-used word derived from bologna. But the Irish blood in my veins brings out a bit of colloquialism, which suggests bull-larney is more usable. At least it fits what politicians think we will believe.

Political promises and bragging claiming truth proves our American vocabulary should add a new and more descriptive word. Lets call it bullarney, with a little Irish Blarney and a pile of bull.

In our last Hello Again, we used an example of American Bullarney when we quoted Hillary Clinton, stating that "No one should believe jobs are created by industry and businesses." She was obviously implying that all jobs are not created by business rather by the government. In her case maybe we should drop the -larney out of our new word and call it what it is.

I do not know where the following came from. I merely wish I could take credit.

An airplane was about to crash. There were five passengers on board, but only four parachutes.

The first passenger said, "I am Kobe Bryant, the best NBA basketball player. The Lakers need me, I can't afford to die." So he took the first parachute and left the plane.

The second passenger, Hillary Clinton said, "I am the wife of the former U.S. President, a senator from New York and a potential future president. I am the smartest women in American history, so America's people don't want me to die." She took the second pack and jumped out of the plane.

The third passenger, John Kerry, said, "I'm a senator, and a decorated war hero from the Army of the United States of America. I am also my party's nominee for president." So he grabbed the pack next to him and jumped.

The fourth passenger, former President George W. Bush, said to the fifth passenger, a 10-year-old schoolgirl, "I have lived a full life, and served my county well. I will sacrifice my life and let you have the last parachute."

The girl said, "That's okay. There's a parachute left for you. America's smartest women took my schoolbag."

All of this bologna, baloney, balarney and bullarney coated with humor at Mrs. Clinton's expense leaves one disturbing thought.

Why would any U.S. Citizen such as the former governor of Arkansas, former U.S. President Bill Clinton, his wife Hillary who was the first lady of Arkansas and first lady of the U.S., a New York State senator, and U.S. Secretary of State, or even President Barack Obama want to change the United States into a socialist state? All three have gained social status, and personal wealth beyond the dreams of any person who could hope to dream, now they are openly gunning to create a socialist state changing the great United States from what it has always stood for: the envy of the working class throughout the entire world. continued on next page

It leaves me with the following question: what is wrong with them? Can they not see how wonderful they have it with our country as it is? Why do they want to change it? Do they see socialist Russia, China, or Cuba as a better place to live? It is possible their soul has a big empty spot with nothing or anyone to believe in. Is it possible they should have skipped some of the Harvard philosophy classes and studied with world and U.S. history teachers along with several credit hours of the Holy Bible? Maybe with that under their belts they could accept the truth.

If they feel bent on changing the United States, why not start with putting God back into his rightful place in our schools, government and society and bring our factory jobs back home. It certainly would be in the best interest of our country to stop believing the U.S. should be the police and military of the entire world.

"Why are you all smiles, Paddy?" asked Mike. "I believe I just sold the Bank of Ireland," he replied. "What are you going to do with all of that money, Paddy?" He answered, "I'm going over to America. A Yank told me the Brooklyn Bridge was up for sale and he wants all cash. If I can't buy the bridge, I think I am mentally suited to be governor of New York State or mayor of the Big Apple. They say — all it takes to win is a line of bullarney and a lot of money, and I've got both."

My two friends, Bob and Gene, were out on the Mohawk River fishing for a whole day and caught only one small bass. Bob grumbled, "That wee fish cost me over $10 in gas." Gene answered, "You're lucky you didn't catch two."

My Aunt Phoebe asked Uncle Joe, "How do you want your egg this morning?" He answered, "Next to another one." Then she asked, "Do you want them on toast?" He answered, "No thank you — a plate will do just fine."

It's common knowledge around St. Johnsville that our chicken farmer friend has developed a special breed of full-sized brown hens that lay half-sized brown eggs and now is planning on multi-colored eggs for Easter. I wonder if we will be able to choose our colors.

It was about this time of year, maybe a little later, when Santa sent his reindeer keeper to say Rudolph's red nose had a short circuit or burned out electrical component. If he needed the use of my red Spyder, three-wheeled, bright red, motorcycle with its bright lights for Christmas Eve, could he borrow it? I was pleased that I could be of service, as I didn't want all the kids all over the world to be disappointed. However, when he brought it back two weeks later, its gas tank was empty. I wonder, did he burn up all of the gas or did his elves ram all over the North Pole with it? It's hard for me to think I cannot trust Santa. What would you do if he wanted your trike? Well — gas is cheaper this year.

Isn't it great, the Bible says God created man in his own image? I believe that includes our ability to think. Isn't it strange that some do not believe that God exists but behave as though Santa Claus and Rudolph, his red-nosed reindeer do? Well — each to his own as Mom always said when Paddy kissed the pig.

Election day is over. Now we can look forward to Thanksgiving. Our American Thanksgiving Day — would it have any meaning if we did not have our Heavenly Father to offer our thankful prayers to?

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ATTENTION TAXPAYERS OF THE TOWN OF PALATINE

It is not a secret anymore. Last week, the local newspapers finally printed articles regarding the Town Council's plan to build a new, very expensive ($400,000.00 and possibly more) Town Hall in a remote location in the town - Stone Arabia - choosing to disregard the less   expensive alternative of upgrading the existing building that would allow it to remain where it is.

I, along with others, do not think this is in the best interest of the taxpayers of the Town of Palatine nor is the Town Board being fiscally responsible.

I would like to hear your opinion on this matter. Please write or stop in and see me at:

363 Brower Rd., Palatine Bridge or call me at 518-673-5474.

THANK YOU, Paul Spencer

Whatchamacallits

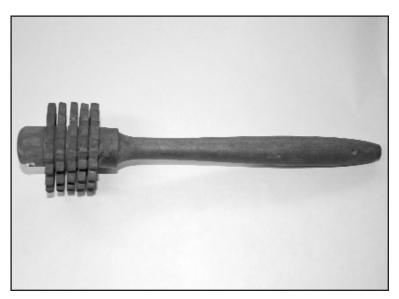

Many household tools have changed quite a bit over time due to the advancement of technology. But other items, like this week's chosen whatchamacallit, have stayed very much the same over the years. After all, if something works. whv change it?

This antique meat tenderizer is a little heavier than modern tools used for the same purpose. It comprises a long handle and five metal rings equipped with angled teeth. Each ring turns independently.

The rings can be removed one by one when the stopper holding them in place is manually loosened. This feature not only allowed for users to adjust the meat tenderizer to fit their desired results — it also eased the chore of cleaning the tool after each use.

----Have your own Whatchamacallit? Send picture and description to kgallagher@leepub.com or call Kelly at 518-673-0145.

Visit our Facebook page each week to see if you can figure out what the upcoming Whatchamacallit is.

~Students of the Month: The Jr/Sr High School congratulates its September Students of the Month: Lizzy Cernik, Bryce Thibodeau, Charles Schermerhorn, Lexi Veitch, Zach Reese, and Aiden VanLoan. The Harry Hoag School also honored its September Students of the Month recently: Kiera St. Louis, Jayde TenEyck, Beonika Hernandez, Marionna Stephens, Sophia Rogers, and Josh Wilder.

~One Call Now: The district has contracted with Public School Notifications from One Call Now. This service is a calling system which allows the school to quickly communicate with families, teachers, and staff by the use of automated phone calls containing recorded messages from administration. District officials are currently in the enrollment and training phase, and the One Call Now service will soon be in use. To make sure that they are contacted with these important messages, families are being asked to take a moment to make sure that their emergency contact information on file at the school is up-to-date. Parents should call the main offices, or send a note in to school, whenever there is a change of telephone number for home, work or cell.

~Drama Club Auditions: The Canajoharie-Fort Plain Drama Club will hold auditions for the musical, "Guys and Dolls" on November 18th and 19th at 6:30 p.m. each night at the Canajoharie High School auditorium. The auditions are open to all students in 6th grade through 12th grade. The format will be the same both nights, and students need only attend one of the two sessions. They should be prepared to both sing and do a dramatic reading. "Guys and Dolls" will be performed in Canajoharie the last weekend in March.

~Nutrition & Wellness News:

1) Families are reminded that last year's eligibility for free/reduced school meals has now expired. Students are charged full price until a new application is received. Please contact the food service office at lauri.broady@fortplain.org or 993-4000 #1003 if you are not sure if you need to re-apply or need another application sent.

2) The 5th Annual Community Health and Wellness Fair will be held this spring, on Saturday April 18th, at the East Hill Elementary/ Middle School. The planning committee is meeting now. Anyone interested in having a booth at this year's fair is encouraged to contact committee chairmen Lauri Broady or Mark Brody at: lauri.broady@fortplain.org or mbro@frontiernet.net

3) Reminder: The Fitness Center at the Jr/Sr High School is now open for the winter season. The center is open from 5:30-7:30 a.m. and 5:30-7:30 p.m. each day that school is in session. The cost is $20/month. Contact 993-4000 #1000 or stop in to the district office at the Harry Hoag School to obtain a Fitness Center membership.

4) Although many tend to overeat at Thanksgiving time, your holiday feast can also provide you with a chance to use the Power of Prevention! Cranberries are high in vitamin C and fiber, have only 45 calories per cup, and are a powerful disease fighter, high in antioxidants. Sweet Potatoes, or yams....whichever you call them, these nutritious root vegetables contain high amounts of calcium, potassium, vitamin A and vitamin C. Dried pumpkin seeds make a great snack! They contain tons of essential minerals, are high in protein, and loaded with important fatty acids (omega-3 and omega-6). Finally, when adding a green vegetable to your menu, consider brussels sprouts. Along with being chocked-full of vitamins and minerals, they serve as a natural anti-inflammatory. Fill half that Thanksgiving plate with vegetables and you will be well on your way toward obtaining all of the disease fighting nutrients you need!

~From the Athletic Department:

1) Congratulations to the Girls Cross Country Team for earning a sectionals patch for 3rd place in the Class C schools division. The team finished 7th overall, out of 28 schools of all sizes participating. This year's sectional meet was held at the Saratoga Spa State Park on October 31st. Great job, team!

2) The Fall Sports Awards/Reception will be held on Wednesday, November 12th at 7:00 in the auditorium at the Jr/Sr High School.

3) Winter sports can begin practicing on Monday, November 10th. Each individual sport (coach) will hold their own parent meeting, during the month of November.

~New School Counseling Website: The Jr/Sr High School counseling department is pleased to announce a new webpage! Parents and students can go to fpschoolcounseling@wordpress.com to see all sorts of information. College-bound juniors and seniors can browse the "Featured College" section, find helpful financial aid information, learn about the college application process, see scholarship opportunities and more. Interested underclassman will find plenty of information about the Career & Tech programs at HFM BOCES, PSATs, SATs, high school scheduling and requirements, etc. The webpage is provided by the FPCS school counselors as a service to all local families. Stop in and take a look! There is also a link available at www.fort plain.org

~Sixth Graders Enter Poster Contest: The Association of Mathematics Teachers in New York State hosts an annual poster contest, open to all public, private or parochial students. The theme of this year's contest is "Dig into Math: Getting to the Core." Six of Donna Yerdon's sixth grade math students have entered their posters for consideration. The students came up with rough designs at home, and then used their lunchtimes to complete their poster ideas. "They worked diligently creating their works of art. I am extremely proud of them for taking on this task and using their creativity to design a poster that centered on the theme," Mrs. Yerdon said. The posters will be on display at the association's Annual Meeting in Syracuse from November 9th-11th. They will then be displayed at the Legislative Building in Albany, at the concourse level of the Empire State Plaza, in February. Winners in each grade classification will be decided at the Annual Meeting by the poster contest committee.

~Class of 2016: There will be a Brooks Chicken BBQ on Tuesday, November 25th from 3:00-6:00 p.m. at the True Value parking lot in Fort Plain. The prices are: $6 for a half chicken, $8 for ribs - when ordering in advance. Advance orders can be placed with Lisa VanValkenburgh or Joanne Kennedy at the school, and money is due by November 14th. The BBQ is sponsored by the Parents of the Class of 2016.

~Second Grade Parent Reminder: All parents of 2nd grade students were given information about the Nutrition Detectives Home Study project. The project asks families to track their buying habits for a few key grocery store staples, to see if nutrition education has an impact on the purchasing choices that families make. Those participating earn up to $40 in free gift cards from Price Chopper. Families are reminded to turn in their responses ASAP. If the information has been lost, they can contact ida.baker@bassett.org or Mrs. Broady at the Harry Hoag School for a new packet or with any questions.

Class of 2015: Al and Linda Wainwright have been hosting classic car shows throughout the area for over a decade. Last fall, the couple asked the Class of 2015 advisors Melanie Pombrio and Sue Summerfield if they would like to team up to help the class with its fundraising. Students from the class have assisted at several of the Wainwright's functions over the past year, and Al & Linda recently presented the Class of 2015 with a check for $1000! Class advisors, class officers, student council representatives, and members of the senior class were on hand to receive this very generous donation. The class has decided to use the donation to purchase "senior sweatshirts" for the class members. They cannot thank Al and Linda enough for their wonderful support!

Elementary Student Council: After a rigorous campaign week - which featured posters, signs, campaign promises, speeches, and announcements - the fourth through sixth grade students voted and a new Student Council was duly elected. Serving the students of the Harry Hoag School this year will be... President: Sarah Paradiso, Vice President: Evan Crouse, Treasurer: Seth Wintermute, Secretary: Zavia Allen. Filling out the council are the grade level representatives. Those representatives are......6th Grade: Molli Bates, Jenna Conley, Rachel Zuppardi, 5th Grade: Keagan Ford, Michael Harris, William Cochran, 4th Grade: Anthony Paradiso, Ryleigh Hart, Madissin Brownell. Congratulations to all of these students and thanks to all those who ran for office.

First Reading Night a Success: Thanks to a $2,000 Early Literacy Grant from Target, the elementary school will continue the "Learning to Live/Living to Learn" Family Reading Nights that began last year. The first of four planned reading nights centered on the theme of "Getting Along." The library staff modeled behavior that parents can use to engage children at home while reading together. Families also received tips and examples of ways to help enhance student social skills and emotional intelligence. The evening included a craft activity for families to do together, and everyone enjoyed a healthy snack prepared by Mrs. Burton and some of her Home & Careers students. The first Family Reading Night of the year was a total success, with 29 families in attendance. Plans are already underway for the next session.

Parent/Teacher Conferences: The Harry Hoag School will hold parent/teacher conferences on Tuesday, November 18th and Wednesday, November 19th. Parents will be contacted by the teacher to schedule a conference time slot. In order to accomodate these sessions, elementary students will be dismissed early, at 12:40 p.m. each of those two days. Lunch will be served prior to dismissal.

Canajoharie first graders investigate pumpkins on Pumpkin Day

by Elizabeth A. Tomlin

First graders in Ms. Michelle Ehle's class at Canajoharie Elementary School learned that there's more to pumpkins than jack-olanterns when they celebrated Pumpkin Day for this autumn season.

"Everything we do today has to do with learning about pumpkins," said Ehle. "We've done some reading already about growing pumpkins."

Measuring, weighing, cutting pumpkins open and examining the external and internal parts, including the stem, rind, pulp, fibrous strands and seeds were all part of Pumpkin Day activities.

Groups of children broke up into teams of four and each team had their own pumpkin to work with. They began by counting the ribs, or lines, on each pumpkin with their team.

"I want to investigate the inside!" stated Traeh Compton. So, after weighing, each pumpkin was cut open.

Separating the seeds from the pulp and then counting seeds into groups of 10 was a big hit with the youngsters. And while some children found the slimy pulp was fun to work with, others were more comfortable wearing gloves while handling it.

Remarkably, Ehle stated that even though the sizes of the pumpkins varied from three pounds to 10 pounds, each contained

"We collected 3,198 seeds!" reported Ehle. "The children loved all the parts of our day, but I have to say that the actual opening of the pumpkin seemed to impress them the most! It is not often we cut pumpkins completely open to investigate."

According to pumpkin history, Native Americans dried strips of pumpkin to weave into mats and ate pumpkin strips roasted on open fires. It is said that pumpkin pie was originated by colonists, when they cut the tops off pumpkins, removed seeds and pulp, filled the shell with spices, milk and honey and then baked it in hot ashes.

All of this has evolved into pumpkin donuts, which the first graders enjoyed after lunch.

Michael Dinehart, Jr., Maddie Hayes, Katelyn Prentice and Dean Ginnow examine the pulp and seeds from their team's pumpkin.

by Larry Cox Delftware

Q: I have inherited three pieces of Delftware that I understand were made in Holland about 200 years ago. What can you tell me about this type of pottery? — Joan, Norman, OK

A: Delftware is distinctive because of its soft, red-clay body and tin-enamel glaze. The first pieces originated in the region around Delft, Holland. The unusual color came from adding tin ash to lead glaze. During the 17th and 18th centuries, English potters were copying this technique resulting in designs that were unique to the British craftsmen. Later pieces were made for the souvenir trade and these are not to be confused with the more scarce earlier examples. Prices vary depending on age and quality of the piece. I recently spotted a blue and white Delftware plate from the 18th century in a shop priced for $375.

Q: I have a metal bootjack in a beetle design. I am enclosing a picture for you and hope you can tell me more about it. I purchased it at a flea market in Albuquerque. – Jimmy, Rio Rancho, NM chased a reproduction. Bootjacks have always been a popular tool for the removal of boots. By placing the heel of the boot in a U-shaped opening, the boot can more easily slip off the foot. Although older bootjacks are collectible and often can sell for $100 and more, your reproduction is probably worth only about $15 or $20. The tipoff is that your bootjack is made from aluminum; the older ones generally are cast iron. and occasionally wood. (c) 2014 King Features Synd., Inc.

Duct facts

(NAPSA) — Be warned: Dirt, allergens and pollutants may be lurking in the cleanest home, hidden away where you can't see them-but you can get help getting rid of them.

Why

The mold, fungi, bacteria and dust clogging your home's heating, ventilation and air-conditioning (HVAC) system can affect your family's health.

When

Frequency of cleaning depends on whether there are pets or smokers in the house, there's been water damage or remodeling done or anyone has allergies or asthma. How

The most effective way to clean air ducts and ventilation systems is to have a professional contractor place the system under negative pressure, through the use of a specialized, powerful vacuum.

Who

Ask if the contractor you're considering is a member of the National Air Duct Cleaners Association (NADCA). These have a Code of Ethics and follow NADCA Standard.

Where

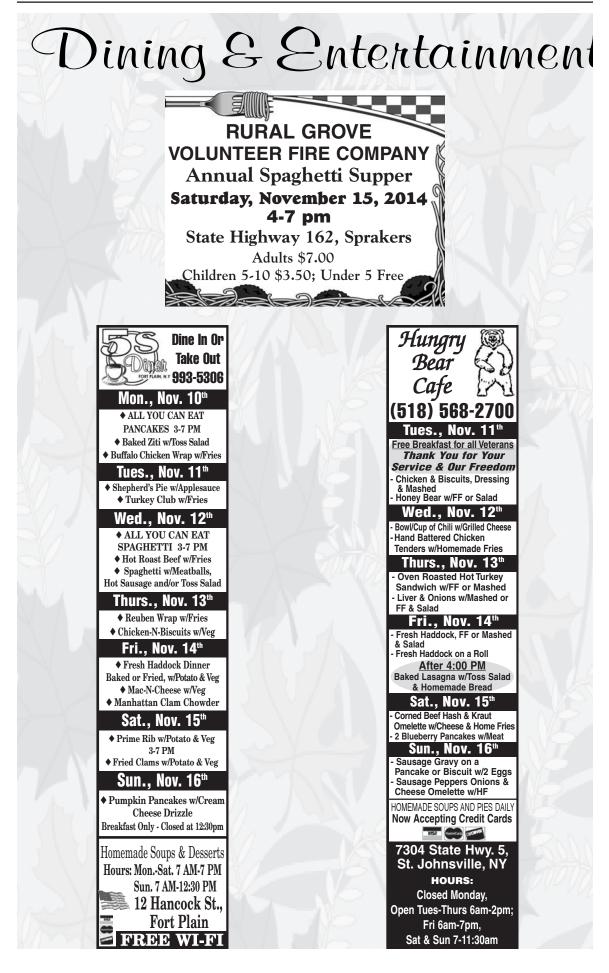

Find a nearby association member at www.nadca.com.

Tackling home improvement projects with kids in tow can be challenging. But if kids are old enough, moms and dads can enlist their youngsters' help when working on projects around the house. Not only can adults keep closer tabs on kids' activities, but involving kids in home projects also lets parents instill important and practical lessons at the same time.

When asked to pitch in on home projects, young kids may feel proud they can lend a hand with such a "grown-up" task. With the right instruction, children of all ages can get involved with fixup projects and learn new skills in the process.

• Include children from the start. When beginning a project, parents can make their kids a part of the design and planning process, welcoming the input of younger members of the family, especially if renovations will impact spaces they use directly. Draft a list of supplies and ask questions of the kids regarding what supplies they think will have to go into completing the project.

• Shop as a family. Although it may slow you down, take children along to the home improvement store so you can purchase supplies together. Let youngsters help you as you choose materials for the project. This way they can see how the raw materials will turn into the finished renovation.

Emphasize safety. Children should understand that tools serve a distinct purpose and that they are not toys. Identify and explain the dangerous pieces of equipment and instruct children that they should not touch or turn on tools without an adult nearby. Go over the proper ways to handle the tools and explain the purposes of each device. Make sure everyone is wearing safety equipment, including eye protection, gloves and ear protection, while handing the tools.

• Demonstrate and then let kids try. Children will not have the skills to perform more intricate tasks, but older kids can hammer some nails, mix paint or even cut wood with supervision. Assign tasks based on the child's age. For example, a preteen may be able to saw wood, while a kindergartener can hand over nails and tools. Illustrate the correct way to get things done and then have children mirror your actions.

• Attempt an easy project first. Painting a room, building a planter box, or another less complicated project can help parents gauge their kids' abilities. Involving children in home improvement projects can teach then new skills, give them a greater appreciation of the work that goes into maintaining a house, instill a sense of pride in youngsters, and provide a great chance for kids and their parents to spend quality together.

CANAJOHARIE:

Don't fear the check engine light

Although the check engine light may look scary lit up on the dashboard, there is nothing to fear. A glowing check engine light doesn't mean you have to immediately pull the car to the side of the road, but it does mean you should get the car checked out as soon as possible, says the Car Care Council.

"Motorists should not get spooked when the check engine light comes on," said Rich White, executive director, Car Care Council. "When illuminated, the check engine light usually means that a vehicle system, such as the ignition, fuel injection or emission control, is not operating properly."

Some common malfunctions that can cause the check engine light to illuminate include a faulty oxygen sensor, mass air flow sensor, or spark plugs and wires. If the light flashes, the condition is more critical and must be checked immediately to prevent severe damage, which may include catalytic converter damage.

November 8, 2014 • B3

"Even if the vehicle appears to be running normally, ignoring the warning light could result in more costly repairs," continued White. "At the very least, the light could be alerting you to an engine problem that is negatively impacting fuel economy and costing you money."

When scheduling service, make sure the repair shop that examines your vehicle has professional technicians who are trained and certified in OBDII diagnosis and repair. The technician will connect your vehicle's computer system to a diagnostic scan tool, which will provide trouble codes indicating why the check engine light was activated. While the diagnostic tool is connected, the technician can analyze data streams such as the idle speed, throttle response, engine temperature, fuel system pressure, manifold vacuum, exhaust emission levels and many other key indicators. Once the problem is identified and the repair is made, the car's computer is reset to initiate the computer's release process.

Have food allergies? Top tips for dining out

(BPT) — An estimated 15 million people in the United States, including one in 13 children, suffer from food allergies, according to Food Allergy Research and Education (FARE). A wide range of reactions to food allergens can provide a unique set of challenges when dining out and even cooking at home. How can someone with food allergies still enjoy foods safely while away?

Culinary professionals from The Art Institutes system of schools provide tips for navigating menus:

Dining out

"One of the most important things for people with food allergies is to be vocal about those food allergies," says chef Jennifer Brooks-Stadler of The Illinois Institute of Art - Chicago. She says to make your allergies known, not only because of substitutions but also to ensure your meal hasn't been prepared using cookware and utensils that have come in contact with the food you are allergic to.

"Ten or more yeas ago, the restaurant industry wasn't very receptive to food allergies, intolerances and menu item substitutions. Today, this is not the case," says chef Andrew Dole of The Art Institute of Colorado. "The consumer is in the driver's seat when it comes to ordering meal alterations."

To make dining experiences easier, Dole recommends looking up the menu or calling ahead to ask questions. Diners should also keep in mind that if they make special requests, they should allow for extra cooking time.

Dole also advises having a few go-to restaurants where you can get a meal without a hassle. "This doesn't mean that trying out new restaurants is out of the question, but at peak meal times or on busy nights of the week, it doesn't hurt to go with what one knows," he says.

To be safe when dining out be vocal about any food allergies.

How to give back to veterans

M embers of the military serve their country proudly, often sacrificing the luxuries of home and time spent with their families to do so. When veterans return home from training or deployment, many people want to show how much they appreciate the sacrifices made by the men and women of the military, but don't know the best way to share that appreciation.

Donations to a veterans' charity is one measure of support the public can offer. Many charities work to serve the needs of veterans. The Wounded Warrior Project provides rehabilitation, counseling and activities for veterans who were wounded during service, while Homes for Our Troops remodels homes or builds them for troops who were injured and need their homes remodeled as a result of their injuries. The USO provides a variety of services for veterans and can always use donations or volunteers.

Another way to help veterans is to assist with their pets. Some dogs and cats get left behind when troops are deployed or forced to move. Volunteering to foster a pet until a soldier Working dogs can be rehabilitated or adopted upon returning home. According to the organization Veterans, Inc., veterans are more at risk of becoming homeless than those who do not serve in the military. Some causes of homelessness include lack of education and transferable skills after returning from military life. Physical and mental health issues can make finding work challenging. Some veterans may cope with trauma resulting from their deployment by leaning on drugs and alcohol, and that can interfere with their ability to get and/or keep jobs. Individuals can help veterans by opening their homes to friends and family members who may need a temporary place to stay. Encourage veterans to embrace job training programs or seek therapy if necessary.

Providing support to military personnel both past and present can mean a world of difference. Correspond with veterans through mail, email or text messages. Operation American Soldier establishes connections between civilians and troops so that all soldiers receive daily mail, whether it's a care package or letter of thanks.

Other simple ways people can give back to troops is to personally thank them for serving their country. Share time with veterans and ask to spend time listening to their stories and experiences.

Prevent colds and flu before they start

Though the holiday season is a joyous time of vear. it's also one when many people succumb to cold and flu. Spending so much time indoors in close proximity to others can increase a person's susceptibility to flu and cold, so it's no surprise that the holiday season, when many people spend lots of time celebrating indoors with family and friends. marks the unofficial start to cold and flu season.

Despite what Mom might have told you about going out into the cold with a wet head or leaving home without wearing a coat, such actions do not increase your risk for cold and flu. But being cooped up indoors, where germs from others who are sick can fester, can increase that risk.

Cold weather also can be a factor, but not for the reason you think. According to a 2007 study from researchers at Mount Sinai School of Medicine, the influenza virus is more stable and can stay in the air longer when the air is cold and dry. Dr. Peter Palese, a flu researcher who is professor and chairman of the school's microbiology department. examined guinea pigs infected with the flu virus to determine the connection between the flu and cold weather. Dr. Palese varied the air temperature and humidity in the guinea pigs' environment and determined that flu transmission was best at 41°F, while the prevalence of transmission declined as the temperature rose. By the time temperatures reached 86°F, the virus was not transmitted at all. Low humidity also helped transmit the virus, and high humidity stopped the spread. Flu viruses spread through the air in water droplets expelled from sick individuals' noses and mouths. High humidity may cause these droplets to fall to the ground before they can infect someone else.

Colds are largely transmitted through surface contact with the virus or direct contact with a sick individual. The cold virus is then contracted on the hands and typically transferred to the nose, eves or mouth through inadvertent touching of these areas. Spending time indoors in close quarters with other people, which is more common in the winter. can facilitate the spread of colds as well as the flu virus.

There are many ways to reduce your risk of contracting a cold or the flu virus this winter. Perhaps no preventive measure is more effective than getting a flu shot. In addition, wash your hands frequently to prevent the spread of germs, and disinfect remote controls, computer keyboards, tablets, mobile phones, and other items that are handled by multiple people on any given day. In addition, spend as much time outdoors as possible so you can escape potentially contaminated indoor air.

If you come down with the flu, increase the humidity in your home by running the shower with the door open, using a recreational aquarium or boiling pots of water. Maintain a warm indoor temperature to reduce the likelihood that the flu virus will spread.

Other ways to reduce your risk for cold and flu include:

• maintaining a healthy

• getting several minutes of sunlight per day • exercising regularly
